 year after the Haitian American's first novel Breath Eyes Memory alerted critics to her compelling voice these 10 stories some of which have appeared in small literary journals confirm Danticat's reputation as a remarkably gifted writer Examining the lives of ordinary Haitians particularly those struggling to survive under the brutal Duvalier regime Danticat illuminates the distance between people's desires and the stifling reality of their lives. A profound mix of Catholicism and voodoo spirituality informs the tales bestowing a mythic importance on people described in the opening story Children of the Sea as those in this world whose names don't matter to anyone but themselves. The ceaseless grip of dictatorship often leads men to emotionally abandon their families like the husband in A Wall of Fire Rising who dreams of escaping in a neighbor's hot air balloon. The women exhibit more resilience largely because of their insistence on finding meaning and solidarity through storytelling but Danticat portrays these bonds with an honesty that shows that sisterhood too has its power plays. In the book's final piece Epilogue Women Like Us she writes: Are there women who both cook and write? Kitchen poets, they call them. They slip phrases into their stew and wrap meaning around their pork before frying it. They make narrative dumplings and stuff their daughter's mouths so they say nothing more. The stories inform and enrich one another as the female characters reveal a common ancestry and ties to the fictional Ville Rose. In addition to the power of Danticat's themes, the book is enhanced by an element of suspense; we're never certain, for example, if a rickety boat packed with refugees introduced in the first tale will reach the Florida coast. Spare, elegant, and moving, these stories cohere into a superb collection. Betsy at the General Store Ann Fisher, 2015-02-28

I remembered sitting in that two-room schoolhouse just as if it was yesterday. Mrs. Biggs would read about George Washington crossing the Delaware. The weather was terrible and his men had no shoes or coats and their clothes were in rags. They kept marching to defend America from the Brits. We won that war. We were a free nation. She would read the stories about our history. The pilgrims and the American Indians shared that first Thanksgiving. The Indians had taught the pilgrims to plant corn and hunt for wild game. Mrs. Biggs started our school day saying the Lord's Prayer and the Pledge of Allegiance to our flag. That was her way of teaching us how thankful we were to live in a wonderful country like America. Mrs. Biggs decided she wanted her student to know the 23rd Psalm. Each day we would practice until each student was able to stand before class and recite the 23rd Psalm. I would push Betsy to school in her little buggy and show her to my friends. Mrs. Biggs would put Betsy in her lap while she read Bambi to us. These are very fond memories. I hope all the children will love Betsy as I did when you read about our adventures. I have dedicated my books to my friend Linda Gaines Williams and Jill Williams, a very special person.

The unforgettable memoir of a woman at the front lines of the civil rights movement, a harrowing account of black life in the rural South and a powerful affirmation of one person's ability to affect change. Anne Moody's autobiography is an eloquent, moving testimonial to her courage. Chicago Tribune. Born to a poor couple who were tenant farmers on a plantation in Mississippi, Anne Moody lived through some of the most dangerous days of the pre-civil rights era in the South. The week before she began high school came the news of Emmet Till's lynching. Before then she had known the fear of hunger, hell, and the Devil. But now there was the fear of being killed just because I was black. In that moment was born the passion for freedom and justice that would change her life. A straight A student who realized her dream of going to college when she won a basketball scholarship she finally dared to join the NAACP in her junior year Through the NAACP and later through CORE and SNCC she experienced firsthand the demonstrations and sit ins that were the mainstay of the civil rights movement and the arrests and jailings the shotguns fire hoses police dogs billy clubs and deadly force that were used to destroy it A deeply personal story but also a portrait of a turning point in our nation s destiny this autobiography lets us see history in the making through the eyes of one of the footsoldiers in the civil rights movement Praise for Coming of Age in Mississippi A history of our time seen from the bottom up through the eyes of someone who decided for herself that things had to be changed a timely reminder that we cannot now relax Senator Edward Kennedy The New York Times Book Review Something is new here rural southern black life begins to speak It hits the page like a natural force crude and undeniable and against all principles of beauty beautiful The Nation Engrossing sensitive beautiful so candid so honest and so touching as to make it virtually impossible to put down San Francisco Sun Reporter
