

A painting of a street scene at dusk or dawn. A large, intense fire is burning in the center of the road, with thick black smoke rising into the sky. Several cars are visible: a red car on the left, a blue car in the center, and a dark car on the right. The street is wet, reflecting the light. In the background, there are trees and a building. The overall mood is dramatic and somber.

Québec Studies in the Philosophy of Science Mathieu Marion, Robert S. Cohen, 2012-12-06 By North American standards philosophy is not new in Quebec the first mention of philosophy lectures given by a Jesuit in the College de Quebec founded 1635 dates from 1665 and the oldest logic manuscript dates from 1679 In English speaking universities such as McGill founded 1829 philosophy began to be taught later during the second half of the 19th century The major influence on English speaking philosophers was at least initially that of Scottish Empiricism On the other hand the strong influence of the Catholic Church on French Canadian society meant that the staff of the facultes of the French speaking universities consisted until recently almost entirely of Thomist philosophers There was accordingly little or no work in modern Formal Logic and Philosophy of Science and precious few contacts between the philosophical communities In the late forties Hugues Leblanc was a young student wanting to learn

Formal Logic He could not find anyone in Quebec to teach him and he went to study at Harvard University under the supervision of W V Quine His best friend Maurice L Abbe had left a year earlier for Princeton to study with Alonzo Church After receiving his Ph D from Harvard in 1948 Leblanc started his professional career at Bryn Mawr College where he stayed until 1967 He then went to Temple University where he taught until his retirement in 1992 serving as Chair of the Department of Philosophy from 1973 until 1979 Rethinking Rational Choice Theory Jan de Jonge,2011-12-12 The marriage of neuroscience and the science of choice behaviour gave birth to neuroeconomics Jan de Jong explores this new discipline investigating the relationship between choice behaviour and brain activity and the light that this sheds on our systems of reasoning RLE: Responding to Fascism Various,2021-08-05 A set of titles regarding fascisim in Germany Italy and Spain in the mid twentieth century The Nazi Dictatorship (Responding to Fascism Vol 3) Roy Pascal,2010-11 Faced with a political movement that was effectively unparalleled many observers found it extremely difficult to work out exactly what kind of regime they were dealing with whose interests did it serve First published in 1934 The Nazi Dictatorship argues both that the Nazi regime represented a clear break from pre War Prussian militarism and that it was not a passing fad It describes a State of Monopoly Capitalism in which large scale industrial and financial interests are paramount The New England Journal of Medicine ,1901 The German Revolution and Political Theory Gaard Kets,James Muldoon,2019-05-02 This book is the first collection within political theory to examine the ideas and debates of the German Revolution of 1918 19 It discusses the political theorists and actors of the revolution and uncovers an incredibly fertile body of political thought Revolutionary events led to the proliferation of new political strategies theoretical insights and institutional proposals Key questions included the debate between a national assembly and a council system the socialisation of the economy the development of new forms of political representation and the proper role of parliaments political parties and trade unions This book offers novel perspectives on the history of the revolution a thorough engagement with its main thinkers and an analysis of its relevance for contemporary political thought What Writers Know Martin Nystrand,2023-07-24 The Present Situation in the Philosophy of Science Friedrich Stadler,2010-05-19 This volume is a serious attempt to open up the subject of European philosophy of science to real thought and provide the structural basis for the interdisciplinary development of its specialist fields but also to provoke reflection on the idea of European philosophy of science This efforts should foster a contemporaneous reflection on what might be meant by philosophy of science in Europe and European philosophy of science and how in fact awareness of it could assist philosophers interpret and motivate their research through a stronger collective identity The overarching aim is to set the background for a collaborative project organising systematising and ultimately forging an identity for European philosophy of science by creating research structures and developing research networks across Europe to promote its development Epistemology and History ,2023-08-14 The Boston Medical and Surgical Journal ,1901
