Proceedings of the American Society of Microscopists American Society of Microscopists,1888 Rotifer Symposium V C. Ricci,T.W. Snell,C.E. King,2012-12-06 The Fifth International Rotifer Symposium was organized by Dr Claudia Ricci and held in the northern Italian town of Gargnano Brescia from September 12 17 1988 Through the generosity of the Rector of Milano University a beautiful villa on the shores of Lake Garda was made available to the 83 people from 20 countries who attended the symposium Ten of these rotifer workers had attended the four previous meetings Such symposia serve three major functions the results of which will be apparent in the papers contained in this volume First because of the heterogeneity of interests and absence of concurrent sessions the attendees are exposed to an unusually large variety of research problems approaches and modes of interpretation Bridges are thus built between one s own investigations and developments in the field as a whole Second the extensive informal interactions that occur outside of the meeting room during coffee breaks dinners and excursions provide remarkable opportunities for research planning and sharing of results of work in progress Third the acquaintances established at these meetings have facilitated interactions during the three year intervals between symposia The result has been that visits between laboratories acquisition of research materials from distant sources and coordination of related investigations have all been greatly enhanced A description of the week s events may serve to convey the ambience of the meeting The Seasonal Distribution of the Crustacea of the Plankton in

Serruya,2012-12-06 Fauna and flora of lakes are an integrative result of regional past history and present environmental factors In the Lake Kinneret area where Prehistoric Man witnessed the last tectonic readjustments of the Rift Valley geological events do not belong only to the remote past but still strongly affect the lacustrine environment It is therefore necessary to give a detailed picture of the regional background and limnological features of the lake Parts I and II before describing its planktic and benthic communities Parts III and IV and the Vertebrate fauna of the lake and its surroundings Part V The trophic relationships between communities are beyond the scope of a Monograph and have consequently not been studied in detail but only mentioned occasionally It is intentional that Man and his penetration into the Kinneret area have been treated on a purely zoological basis It underlines the fact that Man as any other living organism is part of the ecosystem and ruled by its laws and that his activities have an automatic feed back on his environment However in contrast with other living organisms Man is able to utilize the lakes and their watersheds for his benefit if by appropriate management he minimizes the damaging influence of his activities This is the main purpose of the research carried out presently on Lake Kinneret and its watershed and briefly described in Part VI
