Royal Dockyards:

History of Work and Labour Relations in the Royal Dockyards Ann Day, Kenneth Lunn, 2018-10-24 Focusing on the work and labour history of shipyard workers in the Royal Dockyards this text examines the question of state employment and the specific characteristics of that pattern of industrial relations It encompasses discussions of the nature of work and resistance to forms of authority Particular forms of control are available to the employer which are absent from the experience of the private sector In addition the state is often under pressure to act as a model employer and this can lead to tensions between this objective and the need for financial constraint and public surveillance of the uses of taxation Chatham Dockyard, 1815-1865 Philip MacDougall, 2020-11-25 By the end of the Napoleonic Wars the seven home dockyards of the British Royal Navy employed a workforce of nearly 16 000 men and some women On account of their size dockyards add much to our understanding of developing social processes as they pioneered systems of recruitment training and supervision of large scale workforces From 1815 1865 the make up of those workforces changed with metal working skills replacing wood working skills as dockyards fully harnessed the use of steam and made the conversion from constructing ships of timber to those of iron The impact on industrial relations and on the environment of the yards was enormous Concentrating on the yard at Chatham the book examines how the day to day running of a major centre of industrial production changed during this period of transition The Admiralty decision to build at Chatham the Achilles the first iron ship to be constructed in a royal dockyard placed that yard at the forefront of technological change Had Chatham failed to complete the task satisfactorily the future of the royal dockyards might have been very different Morale and Discipline in the Royal Navy during the First World War Laura Rowe, 2018-08-30 In contrast to the voluminous literature on trench warfare few scholarly works have been written on how the First World War was experienced at sea The conditions of war challenged the Royal Navy's position within British national identity and its own service ethos This challenge took the form of a dialogue fuelled by fear of civil unrest between the discourses of paternalism from above and democratism from below Laura Rowe explores issues of morale and discipline using the contemporary language of discipline to shed light on key questions of how the service was able to absorb indiscipline with marked success through a subtle web of loyalties history ethos traditions and customs which were rooted in older notions of service but moulded by the new conditions of total war In so doing she provides not only a new methodological framework for understanding morale but also military discipline and leadership A Management Odyssey J. M. Haas, 1994 The Royal Dockyards were Britain's oldest state enterprise and biggest and most complex industrial unit This book shows how the Admiralty over two centuries struggled to master the intractable problems of organization and management which the dockyards presented Haas maintains that the dockyards portrayed an image of being inefficient high cost producers These problems were chiefly extreme centralization but paradoxically weak control inadequate coordination of departments and accounting procedures unreliable information about production costs and material an insufficiently
