Pride, prejudice and a puppy. A romantic comedy from a Labrador's perspective. Capone, the newly acquired puppy of Miss Josephine St. Clair, owner of Bartleby's Books, is a literature loving Labrador. Obsessed with Jane Austen and cursed with a terrible name, Capone hopes to change his doggie karma and prove he's just as much a gentleman as the heroes in his favorite books by finding the perfect Mr. Darcy for the lonely and bookishly adorable Miss Josie. Unfortunately, the only men Miss Josie seems to encounter aren't Darcys at all. They're Wickhams, Churchills and Willoughbys. Even worse, there is trouble afoot. Someone has been sabotaging Miss Josie's business and all signs point to her evil ex. Can Capone find a way to save Bartleby's Books, help Miss Josie find her true love and earn at long last a name befitting a true gentleman? Honorable Mention, Writer's Digest Self-Published E-book Awards 2019, Winner of the Stiletto Contest 2020. Lonely

he can give King Kong On 4th Street Jagna Wojcicka Sharff, 2018-02-19 This book chronicles an ethnographic team's involvement over a span of fifteen years with the people of a poor largely Puerto Rican neighborhood in New York City. Jagna Sharff focuses on a group of families who live within a radius of a few blocks of her storefront office, especially the children who come first to interact with the team. She contrasts her team's initial observations of how people grapple with daily life with the residents' expressed hopes and dreams in a community lacking jobs but rife with underground activities. Through lively and interconnected stories she traces over time the fate of the neighborhood and the outcomes for individual children and adults during an era when the local and national policy of the war on poverty was transmuted into a war against the poor. The book's lyrical cinematically vivid style makes it appealing both for college social science courses and for the general public. In King Kong on 4th Street Jagna Sharff chronicles an ethnographic team's involvement over a span of fifteen years with the people of a poor largely Puerto Rican neighborhood in New York City. Anchoring her observations in field notes, she recounts the joys, fears, and disappointments of daily life as well as the drama of large events. Arson, the murder of a popular local teenager, the mobbing of a grocery store as an act of retribution for his death, all are projected onto a canvas of shifting local and national policies toward poor people and neighborhoods. Sharff provides new insights into gender and family roles, how adaptations to available resources from the welfare state may shape the membership of households, and how children may be trained for specific adult roles that will advance the family's well-being. She also reveals how the underground economy, particularly the commerce in drugs whose profits are realized outside of the neighborhood, undermines neighborhood-wide solidarity and sends people scrambling against one another for jobs in the quasi-licit and illicit sector. Following the lives of a number of families into the next generation, Sharff's ethnographic team documents how external political decisions that change the war on poverty into a war on the poor affected them. Paramilitary sweeps of the neighborhood in tandem with gentrification and declining social services produce severe dislocations and relocation to homeless shelters, welfare hotels, and prisons. But the reality described is not all grim. The book's vivid style shows that life is more than grim reality. People get real pleasure from raising children and taking part in the human drama around them. Kinfolk, real and fictive, keep each other afloat and reconnected to new neighborhoods and opportunities, including that of upward mobility through religious conversion. Adults and children achieve satisfaction and a measure of security through grit, wit, and acts of heroism and solidarity.

Bride in Tow/All for a Good Cause Lee Emory, Barbara Phinny, 2002-04 BRIDE IN TOW A woman in danger of losing her life. A man in danger of losing his heart to another man's wife. ALL FOR A GOOD CAUSE Once upon a time a former beauty queen belonged to a Medieval Society until she learned the hard way that raising money for charity required more of her than a smile and a sash draped over her ample bosom.
