Trisha T. Pritikin, 2020-02-25 For more than four decades beginning in 1944 the Hanford nuclear weapons facility in southeastern Washington State secretly blanketed much of the Pacific Northwest with low dose ionizing radiation the byproduct of plutonium production For those who lived in the vicinity many of them families of Hanford workers the consequences soon became apparent as rates of illness and death steadily climbed despite repeated assurances from the Atomic Energy Commission that the facility posed no threat Trisha T Pritikin who has battled a lifetime of debilitating illness to become a lawyer and advocate for her fellow downwinders tells the devastating story of those who were harmed in Hanford s wake and seeking answers and justice were subjected to yet more suffering At the center of The Hanford Plaintiffs are the oral histories of twenty four people who joined In re Hanford Nuclear Reservation Litigation the class action suit that sought recognition of and recompense for the grievous injury knowingly caused by Hanford Radioactive contamination of American communities was not uncommon during the wartime Manhattan Project nor during the Cold War nuclear buildup that followed Pritikin interweaves the stories of people poisoned by Hanford with a parallel account of civilians downwind of the Nevada atomic test site who suffer from identical radiogenic diseases Against the heartrending details of personal illness and loss and ultimately persistence in the face of a legal system that protects the government on all fronts and at all costs The Hanford Plaintiffs draws a damning picture of the failure of the US Congress and the Judiciary to defend the American public and to adequately redress a catastrophic wrong Documenting the legal medical and human cost of one community s struggle for justice this book conveys in clear and urgent terms the damage done to ordinary Americans in the name of business progress and patriotism

Tortured Science Dianne Quigley, Amy Lowman, Steve Wing, 2017-03-02 The U S A s nuclear weapons program has exposed workers and the public to health hazards since World War II In the 1980s and 1990s federal health agencies responded to new revelations about these hazards by pouring millions of dollars into research on the health impacts of radiation In Tortured Science Health Studies Ethics and Nuclear Weapons in the United States community health activists and researchers reflect on the research program for addressing the health effects of nuclear weapons production at Hanford WA Rocky Flats CO Livermore Labs CA and Fernald OH The authors describe conflicts of interest data suppression technical inadequacies and other examples of how researchers failed in their social responsibility to the affected human populations The research program s health studies did not lead to any meaningful follow up on the major health concerns of community members nor have they helped communities seek reparations for high radiation exposures that may have contributed to thyroid bone lung and other diseases In Tortured Science several ethicists review these health research problems Research ethics as a discipline seeks to protect individuals and groups obtain approval from affected communities mitigate potential research harms and guard against vigilance scientific contrivance denial and suppression of findings Such protections were not adequately provided in the research program on the health effects of nuclear weapons production as Plutopia Kathryn L. Brown, 2013 While many transnational histories of the nuclear arms race have been written Kate Brown provides the first definitive account of the great plutonium disasters of the United States and the Soviet Union She draws on official records and dozens of interviews to tell the extraordinary stories of Richland Washington and Ozersk Russia the first two cities in the world to produce plutonium To contain secrets American and Soviet leaders created plutopias communities of nuclear families living in highly subsidized limited access atomic cities Plutopia was successful because in its zoned off isolation it appeared to deliver the promises of the American dream and Soviet communism in reality it concealed disasters that remain highly unstable and threatening today Yelling at the Stars Michael Hertzog, 2022-11-25 A family reels from the effects of WWII nuclear fallout but this is far from the Japan of 1945 It s 2006 in Washington State and the war just took another life In this new release of WWII home front historical fiction a 12 year old boy named Asher seems to make his dad furious no matter what he does In hopes of getting his dad back to normal whatever that is he looks for a way to fix it all But he soon finds that he's bitten off more than he can chew when he discovers clues suggesting his grandpa's death may not have been as natural as he was led to believe The secrets he uncovers might change everything but what does a nuclear bomb from 60 years ago have to do with his grandpa and does it have something to do with why his dad hates the world Asher Mari and their quirky little sisters team up to solve the mystery before Asher's dad destroys the family It doesn't take long though for Asher to realize that trying to save someone else from their own despondency can end up putting your own health at risk Through the support of Mari and their top secret spy sisters Asher uncovers enraging revelations about his grandfather's death but realizes a little too late that some mysteries are better left unsolved Federal Register ,1999
