Green, A. Matthias, 1996-12-03 Non governmental organizations NGOs are increasingly recognised as playing a significant role in the health sector in developing countries This book examines the background to the growth both

Non-governmental Organizations and Natural Resource Management in Africa T. R. Ramanathan,1993 Public Policy Toward Non-Governmental Organizations in Developing Countries William Jack,2016 If a developing country government is not good at providing public services such as health care education and social protection would NGOs be better at doing so What advantages do NGOs have over for profit providers of publicly funded services And considering the importance of donor funding which is better for delivering such services an international NGO or a grassroots NGO Jack presents two descriptive models of nongovernmental organizations and poses normative questions about public policy toward NGOs In situations in which optimal government intervention in a distorted or inequitable economy employs an NGO like body he considers which kinds of NGO might be used First in many developing countries NGOs participate in the delivery of what are essentially private goods in particular health care and education In an economy without NGOs there may be good redistributive and efficiency reasons for the government to provide these goods in kind But if direct government provision of such services is ineffective or inefficient when is contracting out to an NGO like institution preferable to using a traditional for profit firm Another way to frame this is to ask What is the optimal taxation and regulation of private providers of publicly financed services NGOs also provide useful real and financial links with external donors They are used to provide services the government favors and donors are willing to fund In this model the service provider is chosen to yield the best outcome for both government and donor In this context Jack compares an international NGO and a grassroots organization It may be more efficient to transfer donor funds through an international NGO than through a local NGO but when donor government cooperation fails a project implemented by an international NGO is effectively killed If a project implemented by a local organization can limp along this otherwise less efficient organization might be preferred This paper product of Public Service Delivery Development Research Group is part of a larger effort in the group to understand the role of NGOs in delivering basic public services The author may be contacted at wjj@georgetown.edu
