apparently senseless crimes with little benefit apart from higher bonuses and a risk of ending up in prison And why do banks which should have learned the tricks of the traders keep being deceived In this Penguin Special the Financial Times associate editor John Gapper unlocks the mystery by delving into the evolutionary risk taking instincts of both humans and animals from yellow eyed junco sparrows in Arizona to honey bees He reveals how banks encourage their traders to evade risk limits and shows how the rogue traders merely mimic the strategies used by their firms to seem more profitable than they really are A rogue trader is often an outsider who starts in a lowly role and gambles with a bank's money in a bid to become a star Gapper traces patterns of behaviour and personality that could be used to catch them before disaster strikes But do the banks really want to And are the rogue traders just the symptoms of a financial system gone rogue
