My Tears Spoiled My Aim And Other Reflections On Southern Culture:

My Tears Spoiled My Aim and Other Reflections on Southern Culture John Shelton Reed, 1993 Still the South My Tears Spoiled My Aim John Shelton Reed, 1994 With characteristic tongue in cheek wit Reed tackles the questions Just what is the South today Where is it Why are Southerners so devoted to it Instructional maps include Where Kudzu Grows and States Mentioned in Country Music Lyrics The Larder John T. Edge, Elizabeth S. D. Engelhardt, Ted Ownby, Sara Camp Milam, 2013-10-15 The sixteen essays in The Larder argue that the study of food does not simply help us understand more about what we eat and the foodways we embrace The methods and strategies herein help scholars use food and foodways as lenses to examine human experience The resulting conversations provoke a deeper understanding of our overlapping historically situated and evolving cultures and societies The Larder presents some of the most influential scholars in the discipline today from established authorities such as Psyche Williams Forson to emerging thinkers such as Rien T Fertel writing on subjects as varied as hunting farming and marketing as well as examining restaurants iconic dishes and cookbooks Editors John T Edge Elizabeth Engelhardt and Ted Ownby bring together essays that demonstrate that food studies scholarship as practiced in the American South sets methodological standards for the discipline The essayists ask questions about gender race and ethnicity as they explore issues of identity and authenticity And they offer new ways to think about material culture technology and the business of food The Larder is not driven by nostalgia Reading such a collection of essays may not encourage food metaphors It s not a feast not a gumbo certainly not a home cooked meal Ted Ownby argues in his closing essay Instead it s a healthy step in the right direction taken by the leading scholars in the field The Social Construction of Educational Leadership Anna Hicks McFadden, Penny Smith, 2004 Most historical and theoretical work on school administration choice has focused on the importance of race and class with increased attention to gender during the past two decades Rarely has geography been a consideration and when it appears at all it is used only to distinguish the unique conditions of urban school settings The Social Construction of Educational Leadership Southern Appalachian Ceilings addresses decisions about who is chosen to lead public schools and how they do it Using their research on senior level public school leaders in the southern mountains of North Carolina as a representative case study the authors construct an argument for a reconsideration of the role of place both in decisions about who becomes a school leader and in how those leaders behave professionally The authors describe the changes in a leadership system grounded in race class geographic and gender preferences that dating back to colonial systems of deference describing the pattern of those changes and exploring their implications for school leadership and the preparation of prospective leaders in the region and elsewhere The American South William J. Cooper Jr., Thomas E. Terrill, Christopher Childers, 2016-11-17 In The American South A History Fifth Edition William J Cooper Jr and Thomas E Terrill demonstrate their belief that it is impossible to divorce the history of the South from the history of the United States The authors analysis underscores the complex interaction between the South

as a distinct region and the South as an inescapable part of America Cooper and Terrill show how the resulting tension has often propelled section and nation toward collision In supporting their thesis the authors draw on the tremendous amount of profoundly new scholarship in Southern history Each volume includes a substantial bibliographical essay completely updated for this edition which provides the reader with a guide to literature on the history of the South This volume contains updated chapters and tables

Sport in America, Volume II David K. Wiggins, 2009-11-11 Sport in America From Colonial Leisure to Celebrity Figures and Globalization Volume II presents 18 thought provoking essays focusing on the changes and patterns in American sport during six distinct eras over the past 400 years The selections are entirely different from those in the first volume discussing diverse topics such as views of sport in the Puritan society of colonial New England gender roles and the croquet craze of the 1800s and the Super Bowl's place in contemporary sport Each of the six parts includes an introduction to the essays allowing readers to relate them to the cultural changes and influences of the period Readers will find essays on well known topics written by established scholars as well as new approaches and views from recent studies Suitable for use as a stand alone or supplemental text in undergraduate and graduate sport history courses Sport in America provides students with opportunities to examine selected sport topics in more depth realize a greater understanding of sport throughout history and consider the interrelationships of sport and other societal institutions Essays are arranged chronologically from the early American period to the present day to provide the proper historical context and offer perspective on changes that have occurred in sport over time Also a list of suggested readings provided in each part offers readers the opportunity to expand their thinking on the nature of sport throughout American history Essays on how Pinehurst Golf Course was created the interconnection between sport and the World War I military experience and discussion of sport icons such as Joe Louis Walter Camp Jackie Robinson and Cal Ripken Jr allow readers to explore sport as a reflection of the changing values and norms of society Sport in America From Colonial Leisure to Celebrity Figures and Globalization Volume II provides students and scholars with perspectives regarding the role of sport at particular moments in American history and gives them an appreciation for the complex intersections of sport with society and culture

Dixie Rising Peter Applebome, 2012-05-30 In a provocative exploration of the triumphant South the region that increasingly defines American politics and values the former Atlanta bureau chief of The New York Times illuminates the people places and passions of this influential section of the country an area that has effectively decided the outcome of every presidential election in the past 30 years

Homelands Leonard Rogoff, 2007-09 Homelands blends oral history documentary studies and quantitative research to present a colorful local history with much to say about multicultural identity in the South Homelands is a case study of a unique ethnic group in North America small town southern Jews Both Jews and southerners Leonard Rogoff points out have long struggled with questions of identity and whether to retain their differences or try to assimilate into the national culture Rogoff shows how as immigrant Jews became small town southerners they constantly renegotiated their identities and reinvented their histories The Durham Chapel Hill Jewish community was formed during the 1880s and 1890s when the South was recovering from the Reconstruction era and Jews were experiencing ever growing immigration as well as challenging the religious traditionalism of the previous 4 000 years Durham and Chapel Hill Jews recent arrivals from the traditional societies of eastern Europe assimilated and secularized as they lessened their differences with other Americans Some Jews assimilated through intermarriage and conversion but the trajectory of the community as a whole was toward retaining their religious and ethnic differences while attempting to integrate with their neighbors The Durham Chapel Hill area is uniquely suited to the study of the southern Jewish experience Rogoff maintains because the region is exemplary of two major trends the national population movement southward and the rise of Jews into the professions The Jewish peddler and storekeeper of the 1880s and the doctor and professor of the 1990s Rogoff says are representative figures of both Jewish upward mobility and southern progress

South to A New Place Suzanne W. Jones,Sharon Monteith,2002-11-01 Taking Albert Murray s South to a Very Old Place as a starting point contributors to this exciting collection continue the work of critically and creatively remapping the South through their freewheeling studies of southern literature and culture Appraising representations of the South within a context that is postmodern diverse widely inclusive and international the essays present multiple ways of imagining the South and examine both new places and old landscapes in an attempt to tie the mythic southern balloon down to earth In his foreword an insightful discussion of numerous Souths and the ways they are perceived Richard Gray explains one of the key goals of the book to open up to scrutiny the literary and cultural practice that has come to be known as regionalism Part I Surveying the Territory theorizes definitions of place and region and includes an analysis of southern literary regionalism from the 1930s to the present and an exploration of southern popular culture In Mapping the Region essayists examine different representations of rural landscapes and small towns cities and suburbs as well as liminal zones in which new immigrants make their homes Reflecting the contributors transatlantic perspective Making Global Connections challenges notions of southern distinctiveness by reading the region through the comparative frameworks of Southern Italy East Germany Latin America and the United Kingdom and via a range of texts and contexts from early reconciliation romances to Faulkner s fictions about race to the more recent parody of southern mythmaking Alice Randall s The Wind Done Gone Together these essays explore the roles that economic racial and ideological tensions have played in the formation of southern identity through varying representations of locality moving regionalism toward a new place in southern studies
