Tagore and Nationalism K. L. Tuteja, Kaustav Chakraborty, 2017-03-15 This volume brings together eminent Tagore scholars and younger writers to revisit the concepts of nation nationalism identity and selfhood civilization culture and homeland in Tagore's writings As these ideas take up the centre stage of politics in the subcontinent as also elsewhere in the world in the 21st century it becomes extremely relevant to revisit his works in this context Tagore's ambivalence towards nationalism as an ideology was apparent in the responses in his discussions with Indians and non Indians alike Tagore developed the concept of syncretic civilization as a basis of nationalist civilizational unity where society was central unlike the European model of state centric civilization However as the subterranean tensions of communalism became clear in the early 20th century Tagore reflexively critiqued his own political position in society He thus emerged as the critic of the nation nation state and in this he shared his deep unease with other thinkers like Romain Rolland and Albert Einstein This volume for the first time covers the socio political historical literary and cultural concerns relating to Tagore's efforts towards the de colonization of the Self The volume begins with various perspectives on Tagore's ambivalence about nationalism It encompasses critical examinations of Tagore's literary works and other art forms as well as adaptations of his works on film It also reads Tagore's nationalism in a comparative mode with contemporary thinkers in India and abroad who were engaged in similar debates

Eaton, 2013-10-28 Colour Art and Empire explores the entanglements of visual culture enchanted technologies waste revolution resistance and otherness The materiality of colour offers a critical and timely force field for approaching afresh debates on colonialism This book analyses the formation of colour and politics as qualitative overflow Colour can be viewed both as central and supplemental to early photography the totem alchemy tantra and mysticism From the eighteenth century Austrian Empress Maria Theresa to Rabindranath Tagore and Gandhi to 1970s Bollywood colour makes us adjust our take on the politics of the human sensorium as defamiliarising and disorienting The four chapters conjecture how European Indian and Papua New Guinean artists writers scientists activists anthropologists or their subjects sought to negotiate the highly problematic stasis of colour in the repainting of modernity Specifically the thesis of this book traces Europeans' admiration and emulation of what they termed Indian colour to its gradual denigration and the emergence of a space of exception This space of exception pitted industrial colours against the colonial desire for a massive workforce whose slave-like exploitation ignited riots against the production of pigments most notably indigo Feared or derided the figure of the vernacular dyer constituted a force capable of dismantling the imperial machinations of colour Colour thus wreaks havoc with Western expectations of biological determinism objectivity and eugenics Beyond the cracks of such discursive practice colour becomes a sentient and nomadic retort to be pitted against a perceived colonial hegemony The ideological reinvention of colour as a resource for independence struggles make it fundamental to multivalent genealogies of artistic and political action and their relevance to the present
