Class, & Gender Esther Ngang-ling Chow, Doris Wilkinson, Maxine Baca Zinn, 1996-05-21 Resource added for the Psychology includes Sociology 108091 courses      With and Without the White Coat Lata Murti, 2014-12-15 This study examines the role of occupational status in the racialization of Indian physicians in Southern California Since the liberalization of U S immigration policy in 1965 the number of first and second generation Indian doctors in the U S has grown to nearly seven percent of the nation s physician workforce however Indians constitute less than one percent of the total U S population Overrepresented in one of America s most prestigious professions Indians are more visible in U S medicine than in the U S at large Previous scholarship in immigration research Asian American Studies and the sociology of occupations has paid little attention to these professional non white immigrants and their racial experience in the U S Asian American Studies in particular has focused primarily on the racial ethnic identity formation of economically disadvantaged non white groups under the assumption that professional Asian Americans class status and occupations in the sciences effectively shield them from racist harm and preclude their engagement in racial politics This research shows that Indian doctors high occupational status and class privilege provide them only partial situational protection from racism They have what I call occupational citizenship access to most of the same rights and privileges as whites only when perceived as being both professionally successful and economically beneficial to the U S They are clearly marked as occupational citizens during clinical interactions with patients when they are in the white coat But outside of this context they are subject to racist treatment from colleagues staff health care institutions and the general public The particular forms of racism these doctors face as well as how they interpret this racism have as much to do with their gender immigrant generation and perception of others race and class as with their own professional class status These findings are based on fifty two interviews with first and second generation Indian doctors in Southern California as well as participant observation at the monthly meetings of two regional Indian medical associations I also observed seven Indian doctors at work noting their interactions with patients staff and colleagues Southern California represents an ideal case for understanding the racial formation of Indian physicians in the U S because of its large but dispersed population of established Indian physicians and its overall diversity of race ethnicity and class      Women's Lives Claire A. Handbook of Parenting Marc H. Bornstein, 2005-02-16 Despite the fact that most people become parents and everyone who has ever lived has had parents parenting remains a mystifying subject about which almost everyone has opinions but about which few people agree Striking permutations on the theme of parenting are emerging single parenthood blended families lesbian and gay parents and teen versus fifties first time moms and dads Divided into four volumes the Handbook of Parenting is concerned with different types of parents basic characteristics of parenting forces that shape parenting problems faced by parents and the practical sides of parenting Contributors have worked in different ways toward understanding all of these diverse aspects of parenting and look to the most recent research and thinking in the field to shed light on many topics every parent has wondered about Because development is too subtle dynamic and intricate to admit that parental caregiving alone determines the course and outcome of ontogeny volume 1 concerns how children influence parenting Volume 2 relates parenting to its biological roots and sets parenting in its ecological framework Volume 3 distinguishes among the cast of characters responsible for parenting and is revealing of the psychological make ups and social interests of those individuals Volume 4 describes problems of parenting as well as the promotion of positive parenting practices Written to be read and absorbed in a single sitting each chapter addresses a different but central topic in parenting and is rooted in current thinking and theory as well as classic and modern research on that topic All chapters follow a standard organization including an introduction to the chapter as a whole followed by historical considerations of the topic a discussion of central issues and theory a review of classic and modern research forecasts of future directions for theory and research and a conclusion In addition to considering their own convictions and research the chapter contributors present and broadly interpret all major points of view and central lines of inquiry
