Higher Education, Meritocracy and Inequality in China Ye Liu,2016-10-08 This book investigates the changing opportunities in higher education for different social groups during China s transition from the socialist regime to a market economy The first part of the book provides a historical and comparative analysis of the development of the idea of meritocracy since its early origins in China and in more recent western thought The second part then explores higher education reforms in China the part played by supposedly meritocratic forms of selection and the implications of these for social mobility Based on original empirical data Ye Liu sheds light on the socio economic gender and geographical inequalities behind the meritocratic facade of the Gaokao Liu argues that the Chinese philosophical belief in education based meritocracy had a modern makeover in the Gaokao and that this ideology induces working class and rural students to believe in upward social mobility through higher education When the Gaokao broke the promise of status improvement for rural students they turned to the Chinese Communist Party and sought political connections by actively applying for its membership This book reveals a bleak picture of visible and invisible inequality in terms of access to and participation in higher education in contemporary China Written in an accessible style it offers a valuable resource for researchers and non specialist readers alike

Obedient Autonomy Erika E.S. Evasdottir, 2007-10-01 In the west the idea of autonomy is often associated with a sense of freedom a self interested state of being unfettered by rules or obligations to others This original anthropological study explores a type of obedient autonomy that thrives on setbacks blossoms as more rules are imposed and flourishes in adversity Obedient Autonomy analyzes this model and explains its precepts through examining the specialized and highly organized discipline of archaeology in China The book follows Chinese students on their journey to becoming full fledged archaeologists in a bureaucracy saturated environment Often required to travel in teams to the countryside archaeologists are uniquely obliged to overcome divisions among themselves between themselves and their peasant workers and between themselves and bureaucratic officials This analysis reveals how these interactions provide teachers of archaeology with stories used to foster obedient autonomy in their students Moreover it demonstrates how this form of autonomy enables a person to order and control their future careers in what appears to be a disorderly and uncertain world A masterly contextualization of archaeology in China Obedient Autonomy shows how the discipline has accommodated itself to a Chinese social structure and uncovers the moral ethical political and economic underpinnings of that context It will be accessible to students of anthropology even as it will provoke Euro American archaeologists and interest social theorists of science philosophers gender theorists and students of Chinese society

The book provides up to date scholarly research on global trends in the distribution of formal schooling in national populations. It also offers a strategic comparative and international education policy statement on recent shifts in education inequality and new approaches to explore, develop and improve comparative education and policy research globally. Contributing authors examine how education as a process interacts with government finance policy to form patterns of access to education services. In addition to case perspectives from 18 countries across six geographic regions, the volume includes six conceptual chapters on topics that influence education inequality such as gender, disability, language and economics, and a summary chapter that presents new evidence on the pernicious consequences of inequality in the distribution of education. The book offers 1 a better and more holistic understanding of ways to measure education inequalities and 2 strategies for facing the challenge of inequality in education in the processes of policy formation, planning and implementation at the local, regional, national and global levels.

Women in the Face of Change Annie Phizacklea, Hilary Pilkington, Shirin Rai, 2013-10-08 The years 1989 and 1990 will probably be best remembered for the speed and breadth of political and economic change which swept through what used to be referred to as the Communist Bloc. With the disintegration of this bloc, there has been no shortage of western advice on how to democratize economy and polity in these societies. However, little thought has been given to what this change means for the millions of women who have toiled for decades alongside men in the factories and fields as well as performing their womanly mission in the home. This collection from women in Eastern and Western Europe and covering both Europe and China poses many questions about the impact of change. It contributes to the debate that seeks to combat inertia and ethnocentrism within western feminism and also to the separate and the critical women's voice which is re-emerging in the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and China.
