Kingship and State Christopher Wrigley, 2002-05-16 The precolonial kingdom of Buganda nucleus of the present Uganda state has long attracted scholarly interest Since written records are lacking entirely until 1862 historians have had to rely on oral traditions that were recorded from the end of the nineteenth century These sources provide rich materials on Buganda in the late eighteenth and nineteenth centuries but in this 1996 book Christopher Wrigley endeavours to show that the stories which appear to relate to earlier periods are largely mythology He argues that this does not reduce their value since they are of interest in their own mythical right revealing ancient traces of sacred kingship and also throwing oblique light on the development of the recent state He has written an elegant and wide ranging study of one of Africa s most famous kingdoms

The Religious Traditions of Africa

Elizabeth Isichei, 2004-11-23 This work is a first of its kind historical introduction to the major religions of Africa. The vast majorities of Africa's peoples have been Muslim, Christian, or Traditionalist for a great deal of time, making an inclusive study of these religions essential. Isichei's work gives equal attention to all three religions and balances the elements of each to construct an easily accessible overview. It is also the first book to provide a comprehensive look at the traditional religion in Africa, filling the void in the literature on African religious history. Written by a pioneering scholar in the African religious experience, this volume blends in-depth research and personal accounts to explore the origins and effects of religion in Africa. While primarily a work of history, this book also incorporates the latest findings while engaging with current issues such as the interface of neo-traditional religion and contemporary cultures. This work includes four sections, each dedicated to a separate religion, detailed maps, a glossary, and a guide to further reading.

A History of African Motherhood Rhiannon

Stephens, 2015-08-06 This history of African motherhood over the longue durée demonstrates that it was ideologically and practically central to social, economic, cultural, and political life. The book explores how people in the North Nyanzan societies of Uganda used an ideology of motherhood to shape their communities. More than biology, motherhood created essential social and political connections that cut across patrilineal and cultural/linguistic divides. The importance of motherhood as an ideology and a social institution meant that in chiefdoms and kingdoms, queen mothers were powerful officials who legitimated the power of kings. This was the case in Buganda, the many kingdoms of Busoga, and the polities of Bugwere. By taking a long-term perspective from c. 700 to 1900 CE and using an interdisciplinary approach drawing on historical linguistics, comparative ethnography, and oral traditions and literature, as well as archival sources, this book shows the durability, mutability, and complexity of ideologies of motherhood in this region.

Decolonising State and Society in

Uganda Katherine Bruce-Lockhart, Jonathon L. Earle, Nakanyike Musisi, Edgar C. Taylor, 2022 Key book on the debates surrounding the knowledge economy and decolonialization of African Studies that brings the subject up to date for the 21st century. Decolonization of knowledge has become a major issue in African Studies in recent years, brought to the fore by social movements such as Rhodes Must Fall and Black Lives Matter. This timely book explores the politics and disputed character of knowledge production in colonial and postcolonial Uganda, where efforts to generate forms of knowledge and solidarity that transcend colonial epistemologies draw on long histories of resistance and refusal. Bringing together scholars from Africa, Europe, and North America, the contributors in this volume analyse how knowledge has been created, mobilized, and contested across a wide range of Ugandan contexts. In so doing, they reveal how Ugandans have built, disputed, and reimagined institutions of authority and knowledge production in ways that disrupt the colonial frames that continue to shape scholarly analyses and state structures. From the politics of language and gender in Bakiga naming practices to ways of knowing among the Acholi, the hampering of critical scholarship by militarism and authoritarianism, and debates over the names of streets lakes mountains and other public spaces this book shows how scholars and a wide range of Ugandan activists are reimagining the politics of knowledge in Ugandan public life      Community-based Heritage in Africa Peter R. Schmidt, 2017-03-03 This volume boldly shifts focus away from top down community engagements usually instigated by elite academic and heritage institutions to examine locally initiated projects Schmidt explores how and why local research initiatives which are often motivated by rapid culture change caused by globalization arose among the Haya people of western Tanzania This frank appraisal privileges local voices and focuses attention on the unique and important contributions that such projects can make to the preservation of regional history Through a blend of personalized narrative and analytical examination the book provides fresh insights into African archaeology and heritage studies      The Law's Beginnings Ferdinand J.M. Feldbrugge, 2021-09-13 Law as we know it with its rules and rituals its procedures and professionals has not been around forever It came into being it emerged at different places and different times Sources which allow us to observe the processes of law s beginnings have survived in some cases In this book scholars from various disciplines linguists lawyers historians anthropologists present their findings concerning the earliest legal systems of a great variety of peoples and civilizations from Mesopotamia and Ancient India to Greece and Rome from the early Germanic Celtic and Slavic nations but also from other parts of the world The general picture is complemented by an investigation into the Indo European roots of a number of ancient legal systems contributions from the point of view of legal philosophy and theory and an overview of the insights gained
