People of the Plow James McCann, 1995-07-15 For more than two thousand years Ethiopia s ox plow agricultural system was the most efficient and innovative in Africa but has been afflicted in the recent past by a series of crises famine declining productivity and losses in biodiversity James C McCann analyzes the last two hundred years of agricultural history in Ethiopia to determine whether the ox plow agricultural system has adapted to population growth new crops and the challenges of a modern political economy based in urban centers This agricultural history is set in the context of the larger environmental and landscape history of Ethiopia showing how farmers have integrated crops tools and labor with natural cycles of rainfall and soil fertility as well as with the social vagaries of changing political systems McCann traces characteristic features of Ethiopian farming such as the single tine scratch plow which has retained a remarkably consistent design over two millennia and a crop repertoire that is among the most genetically diverse in the world People of the Plow provides detailed documentation of Ethiopian agricultural practices since the early nineteenth century by examining travel narratives early agricultural surveys photographs and engravings modern farming systems research and the testimony of farmers themselves collected during McCann's five years of fieldwork He then traces the ways those practices have evolved in the twentieth century in response to population growth urban markets and the presence of new technologies

Agricultural Development And Nutrition Arnold Pacey, 2019-03-05 This book is an expose of the many food consumption related problems which need to be considered alongside agricultural production issues in development It examines factors that determine the degree to which people have access to food and can assimilate its nutrients Papers of the Conference on Seasonal Dimensions to Rural Poverty: Seasonality, subsistence agriculture, and labour : ,1978* Revolutions in Development Inquiry Robert Chambers, 2012-05-04 Robert Chambers draws together and reviews the revolutionary changes in the methodologies and methods of development inquiry that have occurred and reflects on their transformative potential for the future African Food Systems in Crisis Rebecca Huss-Ashmore, Solomon H Katz, 2019-07-19 Originally published in 1991 Commissioned by the Task Force on African Famine of the American Anthropological Association this the second part of a project examining the causes of food system failure in Africa and the effects of attempts to remedy the situation It evaluates the often retrogressive results of foreign aid to African nations and offers an anthropological perspective on how to reverse this trend The contributors emphasize integrating all development programs with the regional customs and traditions already in place that have thus far allowed its people to cope with food and water shortages In the past various strategies have failed due to misunderstandings and incorrect assumptions concerning gender roles food consumption habits social relations kinship networks land use and government function New understanding of the culture must be complemented with multifaceted programs incorporating education a concern for grass roots opinion and control attention to production and consumption patterns and various forms of broad spectrum integrated development The uniqueness research is recommended for all who are concerned about worldwide malnutrition and those who understand the need to recognize local traditions as resources that must be included in any successful development program African Food Systems in Crisis: Contending with change Rebecca Huss-Ashmore, Solomon H. Katz, 1989 First Published in 1991 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Temperature and Environmental Effects on the Testis Adrian W. Zorngiotti, 2013-03-13 It must be considered that there is nothing more difficult to carry out nor more doubtful of success nor more dangerous to handle than to initiate a new order of things Machiavelli The Prince 1513 These are the Proceedings of a Conference on Temperature and Environmental Factors and the Testis which took place at New York University School of Medicine December 8th and 9th 1989 There is good reason to believe that this was the first of its kind to address exclusively the implications of temperature for this highly thermosensitive organ and its precious genetic cargo The organizers of the Conference hoped to stimulate interest in this area which paradoxically has a considerable literature but which has received scant attention and sometimes outright opposition from clinicians expert in male infertility There have been studies of the relationship of temperature to reproduction starting in the mid 18th Century with observations of the relationship of water temperature to spawning of fish There is also a vast literature on the deleterious effects of externally applied heat upon spermatogenesis but little study of the possibility that intrinsic heat may be an important etiologic factor in subfertile semen Today fertility research has largely ignored this in favor of research in areas which have not produced successes in terms of live births comparable to what can be obtained by varicocelectomy when appropriate or scrotal hypothermia viz 1

Concentration upon the endocrine aspects of testicular function and its relation to spermatogenesis Different Places, Different Voices Vivian Kinnaird, Janet Momsen, 2002-03-11 Different Places Different Voices challenges Western feminist and post colonial approaches in its analysis of the changing lives of women of Asia Africa Latin America and Oceania

Recognising the significance of place this is a book informed by the voices of female geographers from the developing world Twenty case studies present regional perspectives on urban and rural development household reproduction and production and community organisation The theoretical and contextual approach and the emphasis on location and positionality highlight the differences created by place to suggest other ways of seeing Development and the Environmental Crisis

Michael Redclift, 2010-11-26 First published in 1984 Michael Redclift's book makes the global environmental crisis a central concern of political economy and its structural causes a central concern of environmentalism Michael Redclift argues that a close analysis of the environmental crisis in the South reveals the importance of the share of resources obtained by different social groups The development strategies based on the experiences and interests of Western capitalist countries fail to recognise that environmental degradation in the South is a product of inequalities in both global and local economic relations and cannot be solved simply by applying solutions borrowed from environmentalism in the North The key to understanding the South's environmental problems lies in the recognition that structural processes markets technology state intervention are also a determining influence upon the way natural resources are used Through his review of Europe's Green Movement contemporary breakthroughs in biotechnology and information systems and recent feminist discourse Michael Redclift has enlarged the compass of the environmental debate and produced a book which should serve as a benchmark in future discussions of development and the environment It will be of importance to students in a range of disciplines within development studies geography ecology and the social sciences
