Department of Community Development,1988* Seattle's Chinatown-International District Doug Chin,2024 Traces the journey of early Asian immigrants to Seattle describes their early settlements and chronicles the evolution of the area from its early times to the present It covers the struggles to preserve this unique ethnic community the internal and external conflicts with it and the important institutions people and events that shaped the District Seattle's International District Doug Chin,2001

Metamorphosis of a Chinatown International District, Seattle Marilyn Chu,1977 Seattle Chinatown International District Preservation and Development Authority Compliance Review Dan Nygaard,Seattle (Wash.). Office of City Auditor,2002 Historic Alley Reactivation in Seattle's Chinatown International District Ching Chan,2015 Alley reactivation to activate underutilized alleys by bringing people businesses residences and positive activities back into these right of ways has been building up momentum in Seattle s urban centers since 2007 More recently the City has been progressive in gradually adopting programs and streamlined permitting processes for street vendors sidewalk cafes and parklets all of which are programs that help activate streets and public spaces and enhance the pedestrian experience A handful of alleys in Seattle have launched their reactivation campaign in recent years including Canton Alley project This is a good time for the City to evaluate its current regulations around the city s alley network and reimagine the potential of alleys as vibrant public spaces This thesis is a documentation of the Canton Alley project development a grassroots effort to reactivate a historic alley in Seattle s Chinatown International District through physical improvements This historic alley reactivation project is a case study that examines the challenges and opportunities of Seattle s urban alleys and a community s quest to revert the current utilitarian uses of the alley to its historic community centric uses What are the current parameters around alleys through Seattle Department of Transportation What resources are accessible to grassroots community groups What are the roles that local authorities could play to help facilitate and encourage reactivation of alley spaces in Seattle s urban centers The purpose of this thesis is to provide an understanding and context of the public processes to reactivate an alley rich in history and culture from conception to preconstruction stage lending first hand experience in working with a multi ethnic community the Seattle Department of Transportation and local partners It discusses challenges faced by Chinatown Historic Alley Partnership as well the incremental successes of the project The significance of this research and alley reactivation project is organizing and working with the Chinatown International District community to find common ground collaborate take ownership of the underutilized public space and fully develop the project amidst the challenges of securing funding and navigating the Seattle Department of Transportation's system A list of recommendations was developed from the results and lessons learned from these processes for community groups interested in reactivating their neighborhood alleys Seattle in Coalition Diana K. Johnson, 2023-02-14 In the fall of 1999 the World Trade Organization WTO prepared to hold its biennial Ministerial Conference in Seattle The event culminated in five days of chaotic political protest that would later be known as the Battle in Seattle The convergence represented the pinnacle of decades of organizing among workers of color in the Pacific Northwest yet the images and memory of what happened centered around assertive black bloc protest tactics deployed by a largely white core of activists whose message and goals were painted by media coverage as disorganized and incoherent This insightful history takes readers beyond the Battle in Seattle and offers a wider view of the organizing campaigns that marked the last half of the twentieth century Narrating the rise of multiracial coalition building in the Pacific Northwest from the 1970s to the 1990s Diana K Johnson shows how activists from Seattle's Black Indigenous Chicano and Asian American communities traversed racial regional and national boundaries to counter racism economic inequality and perceptions of invisibility In a city where more than eighty five percent of the residents were white they linked far flung and historically segregated neighborhoods while also crafting urban rural multiregional and transnational links to other populations of color The activists at the center of this book challenged economic and racial inequality the globalization of capitalism and the white dominance of Seattle itself long before the WTO protest I-90 Seattle Added Access, King County, 1992 I-5-I-90 Construction, Seattle, 1983 Seattle Monorail Project, 2004 Proposed Master Plan Update Development Actions, Seattle-Tacoma (Sea-Tac) International Airport, King County, 1996 Cumulative List of Organizations Described in Section 170 (c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 United States.
