Making Place Stephan Feuchtwang, 2012-09-10 To make a place is to create a location where its creators can feel they belong Processes of place making are still very much ongoing today Geographers sociologists political scientists and philosophers of advanced capitalism have said that place is a localisation of the global However the creation of a place is not legible from such grand perspectives It is also much more creative than can be predicted by translating large scale processes into local cultures Anthropologists have been sensitive to the intimate tragic and lyrical senses of local place But their theorising has been too much bound up with cosmology and insufficiently with the intermediate scales of state and local state In this book Stephan Feuchtwang and his contributors offer a set of historical anthropological and scale mediated studies from China a country that includes a subcontinental variety of cultures and landscapes In the twentieth century it experienced collapse in civil war and was then reasserted as a particularly strong state Now it is managing the fastest growing capitalist economy in the world These intriguing Chinese studies contribute to the anthropology of place and space providing an historical perspective on processes of change and of accommodation to disruption The stories they tell are fascinating in their own right but in addition the result is a critical reformulation of previous theories of place that geographers philosophers historians and anthropologists will find of great interest

Cultures of Secrecy Andrew Lattas, 1998 After driving the Japanese out of Papua New Guinea during World War II the U S military forces left their gear and the makings of a cargo cult to the native Kaliai CULTURES OF SECRECY offers a close look at how for fifty years the bush Kaliai in Melanesia have worked these tailings of the western world into their indigenous culture Lattas shows how cargo cults in general bring together past present and future in their curious blending of traditional myths imported folklore borrowed state practices and ideologies and reworked Christian stories The result is a richly interdisciplinary work that uses ethnography to explore questions of racial experience gender relations space time death and the politics of human relations Never passive imitators the Kaliai as Andrew Lattas portrays them actively incorporate and transform western beliefs and practices into their own narratives of life sexuality and death The consequences are new myths and histories new relationships with the ancestral dead an alternative world of power and knowledge through which the Kaliai accommodate the dominant white culture and its institutions Lattas examines the racial conflict that has riddled the recent history of the cargo cults He also describes the cults demonization by the New Tribes missionaries from the United States who disapprove of the villagers unorthodox miming of European symbols and practices His book allows us to see behind the villagers ambivalence toward waitskin white skins as they continue to reinvent their social world

Comparative Metaphysics Pierre Charbonnier, Gildas Salmon, Peter Skafish, 2016-12-22 How does the ontological turn in anthropology redefine what modern Western ontology is in practice and offer the beginnings of a new ontological pluralism On a planet that is increasingly becoming a single metaphysically homogeneous world anthropology remains one of the few disciplines that recognizes that being has been thought with very different concepts and can still be rendered in terms quite different than those placed on it today Yet despite its critical acuity even the most philosophically oriented anthropology often remains segregated from philosophical discussions aimed at rethinking such terms What would come of an anthropology more fully committed to being a source of post philosophical concepts What would happen to philosophy if it began to think with and through these concepts How finally does comparison condition these two projects This book addresses these questions from a variety of perspectives all of which nonetheless hold in common the view that philosophy has been displaced and altered by the modes of thought of other collectives An international group of authors including Eduardo Viveiros de Castro Marilyn Strathern Philippe Descola and Bruno Latour explore how the new anthropology philosophy conjuncture opens new horizons of critique

Hyperborea in Ancient Greece Renaud Gagné, 2021-04-22 Follows the extraordinary record of ancient Greek thought on Hyperborea as a case study of cosmography and anthropological philology Wombs and Alien Spirits Janice Boddy, 1989-12-01 Based on nearly two years of ethnographic fieldwork in a Muslim village in northern Sudan Wombs and Alien Spirits explores the z r cult the most widely practiced traditional healing cult in Africa Adherents of the cult are usually women with marital or fertility problems who are possessed by spirits very different from their own proscribed roles as mothers Through the woman the spirit makes demands upon her husband and family and makes provocative comments on village issues such as the increasing influence of formal Islam or encroaching Western economic domination In accommodating the spirits the women are able metaphorically to reformulate everyday discourse to portray consciousness of their own subordination Janice Boddy examines the moral universe of the village discussing female circumcision personhood kinship and bodily integrity then describes the workings of the cult and the effect of possession on the lives of men as well as women She suggests that spirit possession is a feminist discourse though a veiled and allegorical one on women's objectification and subordination Additionally the spirit world acts as a foil for village life in the context of rapid historical change and as such provides a focus for cultural resistance that is particularly though not exclusively relevant to women
