Nolan Prisoner Of The Inquisition:

The Nolan Morton L. Yanow, 1998 A novel on Giordano Bruno a 16th century Italian philosopher burned at the stake for teaching there is life beyond this world It is narrated by his inquisitor Time Traveling With Science and the Saints George A. Erickson, 2010-10-05 For sixteen centuries Christianity dominated Western culture during which time a powerful church rigidly and sometimes ruthlessly imposed its dogma Under these conditions progressive thinkers who departed from the Christian worldview encountered stiff opposition from ecclesiastical authorities Persecution by both church and state as a means of stifling heretics became routine Using the biblical dictum by their fruits shall ye know them Mt 7 20 humanist George Erickson surveys the historical record of the defenders of faith and the proponents of reason His analysis challenges the commonly held belief that despite its many abuses religion on balance civilized the world Beginning with the unfettered progress of science in pre Christian polytheistic societies he notes that this progress was soon actively thwarted by the growing Christian throng Aided by the carrot and stick appeal of heaven and hell missionary passion superstitions and miracles Christianity gradually overwhelmed its religious competitors while simultaneously working to destroy all interest in scientific reasoning Yet even amidst these suffocating often bloody conditions certain individuals doggedly pursued new and dangerous frequently heretical scientific research sometimes at the risk of their lives Erickson briefly profiles such pioneers as Giordano Bruno Copernicus Galileo Darwin Linnaeus and others While condemning the Christianity that produced such abominations as the Inquisition and witch hunts Erickson concludes on an optimistic note emphasizing that science and secular society have broken free from centuries of religious opposition and continue to benefit the world through mass education modern medicine and technological progress George A Erickson New Brighton MN is a former director of the American Humanist Association a member of the Council for Secular Humanism and the National Center for Science Education and the author of a pro science pro freethought travel adventure book titled True North Exploring the Great Wilderness by Bush Plane Concepts Paul Dehn Carleton, 2004 Concepts is a search for theism's roots coined prototheism a science of religion Its notion is Belief in God is a misconception of the Life Urge emerging from deep in human nature Concepts traces Life's trajectory from Earth's origin to consciousness to today's runaway material culture Strangers and Sojourners at Port Royal Ruth Clark, 2014-07-24 Originally published in 1932 this book presents an account of the connections between Jansenism and Britain Using a broad range of material the text discusses the various ways in which British people came into contact with Jansenism both at home and abroad Illustrative figures a chronology and bibliography are also included This book will be of value to anyone with an interest in Jansenism and European history Encyclopedia of Literature and Science Pamela Gossin, 2002-08-30 Science and literature have always been strange bedfellows Like puzzle pieces they fit because they're different Some of the greatest works of world literature have been inspired by the marvels of the scientific world Scientists have written works of the imagination Even formal scientific writings have been known to employ rhetoric There is a tendency to think of literature and the humanities in general as having little to do with science Yet scholars have conducted fruitful studies of the history and philosophy of science With the rise of technology scholars have also applied scientific analysis to the study of literature and the creative process The intersection of scientific and humanistic inquiry is finally being mapped This volume includes more than 650 A Z entries on topics and themes in science and literature significant writers key scientists seminal works and important theories and methodologies This reference defines the rapidly emerging interdisciplinary field of literature and science An introductory essay traces the history of the field its growing reputation and the current state of research Broad in scope the volume covers world literature from its beginnings to the present day and illuminates the role of science in literature and literary studies A wide range of experts contributed entries to this volume each of which concludes with a brief bibliography The entire volume closes with a list of works for further reading
