Writing Visual Histories Florence Grant, Ludmilla Jordanova, 2020-11-12 What can visual artifacts tell us about the past How can we interpret them rigorously weaving their formal and material qualities into rich social contexts to reach wider historical conclusions Unfolding key historiographical and methodological issues Writing Visual Histories equips students to answer these questions showing visual analysis to be a key skill in historical research A multifaceted structure makes this a practical guide for writing and reflecting on visual histories A first section includes six case studies on topics ranging from medieval heraldry to Life magazine These examples are followed by an exploration of essential concepts that inform historical thinking about visual matters a treatment of disciplinary practices and discussion of the practicalities such as accessing museum collections and organising permissions that scholars working with visual sources have to navigate This book is an invaluable tool kit for opening up a historical understanding of visual phenomena and practices of looking and for writing that takes an integrated approach to studies of the past

The Fourth Dimension and Non-Euclidean Geometry in Modern Art, revised edition Linda Dalrymple Henderson, 2018-05-18 The long awaited new edition of a groundbreaking work on the impact of alternative concepts of space on modern art In this groundbreaking study first published in 1983 and unavailable for over a decade Linda Dalrymple Henderson demonstrates that two concepts of space beyond immediate perception the curved spaces of non Euclidean geometry and most important a higher fourth dimension of space were central to the development of modern art. The possibility of a spatial fourth dimension suggested that our world might be merely a shadow or section of a higher dimensional existence. That iconoclastic idea encouraged radical innovation by a variety of early twentieth century artists ranging from French Cubists Italian Futurists and Marcel Duchamp to Max Weber Kazimir Malevich and the artists of De Stijl and Surrealism. In an extensive new Reintroduction Henderson surveys the impact of interest in higher dimensions of space in art and culture from the 1950s to 2000. Although largely eclipsed by relativity theory beginning in the 1920s the spatial fourth dimension experienced a resurgence during the later 1950s and 1960s. In a remarkable turn of events it has returned as an important theme in contemporary culture in the wake of the emergence in the 1980s of both string theory in physics with its ten or eleven dimensional universes and computer graphics. Henderson demonstrates the importance of this new conception of space for figures ranging from Buckminster Fuller Robert Smithson and the Park Place Gallery group in the 1960s to Tony Robbin and digital architect Marcos Novak.

Making Sense of Space Iryna Kuksa, Mark Childs, 2014-06-16. The use of Virtual Worlds VWs has increased in the last decade. VWs are used for communication education community building creative arts and more. A good deal of research has been conducted into learning and VWs but other areas remain ripe for investigation. Factors from technological platforms to the nature and conventions of the communities that use VWs must be considered in order to achieve the best possible interaction between virtual spaces and their users. Making Sense of Space focuses on the background to these issues describing a range of case studies conducted by the authors. The book investigates the innovative and creative ways designers employ VWs for research performance making and audience engagement. Secondly it looks into how educators use these spaces to support their teaching practice. Lastly the book examines the potential of VWs as new methods of communication and the ways they are changing our perception of reality. This book is structured into four chapters. An introduction provides a history and outline of important themes for VWs and subsequent chapters consider the design of virtual spaces experience of virtual spaces and communication in virtual spaces. Written by two experienced academics and practitioners in the field offering different perspectives. Uses a multidisciplinary approach drawing on education scenography performance studies disaster management and computer science. Provides multiple viewpoints on the topic gained through interviews and contributions from a range of experts as well as several co authored chapters.

Theatre Design & Technology, 2008. Founders of American Industrial Design Carroll Gantz, 2014-07-15. As the Great Depression started in 1929 several dozen creative individuals from a variety of artistic fields including theatre advertising graphics fashion and furniture design pioneered a new profession. Responding to unprecedented public and industry demand for new styles these artists entered the industrial world during what was called the Machine Age to introduce modern design to the external appearance and form of mass produced functional mechanical consumer products formerly not considered art. The popular designs by these machine designers increased sales and profits dramatically for manufacturers which helped the economy to recover established a new profession industrial design and within a decade changed American products from mechanical monstrosities into sleek modern forms expressive of the future This book is about those industrial designers and how they founded developed educated and organized today s profession of more than 50 000 practitioners
