Norman And The Killer:

The Serial Killer's Apprentice Katherine Ramsland, Tracy Ullman, 2024-04-16 A psychological examination of the blurred line between victim and accomplice and how a killer can be created Elmer Wayne Henley Jr was only fourteen when he first became entangled with serial rapist and murderer Dean Corll in 1971 Fellow Houston Texas teenager David Brooks had already been ensnared by the charming older man bribed with cash to help lure boys to Corll's home When Henley unwittingly entered the trap Corll evidently sensed he'd be of more use as a second accomplice than another victim He baited Henley with the same deal he'd given Brooks 200 for each boy they could bring him Henley didn't understand the full extent of what he had signed up for at first But once he started Corll convinced him that he had crossed the line of no return and had to not only procure boys but help kill them and dispose of the bodies as well When Henley first took a life he lost his moral base He felt doomed By the time he was seventeen he'd helped with multiple murders and believed he'd be killed too But on August 8 1973 he picked up a gun and shot Corll When he turned himself in Henley showed police where he and Brooks had buried Corll's victims in mass graves Twenty eight bodies were recovered most of them boys from Henley's neighborhood making this the worst case of serial murder in America at the time The case reveals gross failures in the way cops handled parents pleas to look for their missing sons and how law enforcement possibly protected a larger conspiracy The Serial Killer's Apprentice tells the story of Corll and his accomplices in its fullest form to date It also explores the concept of murder the predator's instinct for exploitable kids current neuroscience about adolescent brain vulnerabilities the role of compartmentalization the dynamic of a murder apprenticeship and how tales like Henley's can aid with early intervention Despite his youth and cooperation Henley went to trial and received six life sentences He's now sixty five and has a sense of perspective about how adult predators can turn formerly good kids into criminals Unexpectedly he's willing to talk This book is his warning and the story of the unspeakable evil and sorrow that befell Houston in the early 1970s

The Sealed Truth Dr. William R. Holland, 2011-04-20 THE SEALED TRUTH is based on a heinous crime that occurred in Rhode Island in 1975 when five year old freckle faced Justin Doherty real names and places have been changed was kidnapped and murdered After a week long search by Hopeville police and volunteers

Justin's mother Jane and Detective Rick Thurston began a gut wrenching futile crusade to find Justin. In 1982 Norman Stedman, a twenty three year old loner and neighbor, was arrested when he tried to strangle the local paperboy and while interrogated confessed that he had killed Justin. During the search of Norman's house the police found Justin's skull and bones and a journal that described in grim detail what he had done to the dead boy's body. In a plea bargain the trial judge sealed the journal. This action caused a series of despicable rumors that exist to this very day about what Norman actually wrote in his journal. Gary Thomas, a retired school principal, sought answers to a series of questions raised by the crime: What caused the killer, a capable student and considered harmless, to go over the edge and kill an innocent child? What exactly was written in the sealed journal? What long term effect has this brutal crime had on its victims? Update: The names of the real killer and victims were changed in the book to protect their privacy; however, after the book was completed, the Rhode Island Department of Corrections publicly announced the intended early release of the actual child killer, Michael Woodmansee, in the summer of 2011. The surprise announcement became a national story that ignited passions and generated new fear as people remembered rumors of cannibalism and other alleged horrible things surrounding the gruesome murder of five year old Jason Foreman in Peace Dale, Rhode Island, in 1975. The father of the murdered boy publicly stated on national television that he would kill the boy when and if Woodmansee is released. Organized protests have occurred and legislation filed to change a good time early release law that allowed a child killer like Woodmansee to serve only 28 years of his 40 year sentence. Because any new law will not be retroactive, state officials are looking instead at civil institutional commitment for Woodmansee, something that will only occur if two independent psychiatrists find him a danger to himself and to the community. Meanwhile, the public remains outraged to think that Woodmansee will be free in the near future to walk their streets again.

American Women Writing Fiction Mickey Pearlman, 2014-10-17

American literature is no longer the refuge of the solitary hero. Like the society it mirrors, it is now a far richer, many faceted explication of a complicated and diverse society, racially, culturally, and ethnically interwoven and at the same time fractured and fractious. Ten women writing fiction in America today: Toni Cade Bambara, Joan Didion, Louise Erdrich, Gail Godwin, Mary Gordon, Alison Lurie, Joyce Carol Oates, Jayne Anne Phillips, Susan Fromberg Schaeffer, and Mary Lee Settle, represent that geographic, ethnic, and racial diversity that is distinctively American. Their differing perspectives on literature and the American experience have produced Erdrich's stolid North Dakota plainswomen, Didion's sun baked dreamers and screamers, the urban ethnics, Irish, Jewish, and black of Gordon, Schaeffer, and Bambara, Oates's small town, often violent neurotics, Lurie's intellectual sophisticates, and the southern survivors and victims, male and female, of Phillips, Settle, and Godwin. The ten original essays in this collection focus on the traditional themes of identity, memory, family, and enclosure that pervade the fiction of these writers. The fictional women who emerge here, as these critics show, are often caught in the interwoven strands of memory, perceive literal and emotional space as entrapping, find identity elusive and frustrating, and experience the interweaving of silence, solitude, and family in complex patterns Each essay in this collection is followed by bibliographies of works by and about the writer in question that will be invaluable resources for scholars and general readers alike Here is a readable critical discussion of ten important contemporary novelists who have broadened the pages of American literature to reflect more clearly the people we are
