The Biology of Moulting in Birds

Lukas Jenni, Raffael Winkler, 2020-09-17 The first comprehensive review of all aspects of the biology of moulting drawing information from across the literature and in all birds from penguins to passerines Feathers are amazing structures unique to birds and for a variety of reasons they need to be renewed periodically as a whole in a process called moulting During this process all of the functions of plumage are impaired and most aspects of a bird's life are affected Every moulting determines a bird's appearance anew and restores plumage efficacy for flight and insulation Moulting profoundly affects physiology and the organization of the annual cycle and it constrains reproduction and migration Given these major impacts which are equal to the other annual challenges of reproduction and migration it is surprising that research on moulting has largely been so neglected a subject Lukas Jenni and Raffael Winkler have brought together the widely scattered results of studies on the processes and consequences of moulting in birds This book opens with an overview of the functions of plumage and of feather maintenance and feather wear and then introduces the two functions of moulting replacement of worn feathers and adjustment of plumage characteristics and appearance The body of the book then examines feather growth and the physiology energetics and control of moulting and how various other physiological processes interact with moulting and may compensate for its costs Significantly the authors explain how variations in moulting and feather quality affect a bird's overall plumage quality and they highlight the resulting consequences in terms of physical performance appearance and signalling Finally there is a review of all the various solutions that birds have developed to fit moult into the annual cycle This long awaited book covers for the first time all aspects of the biology of moult and fills an important gap in the literature completing our understanding of how the most important annual events in a bird s life fit together into a coherent whole It draws on a wide range of information from penguins to small passerines from raptors to wildfowl to highlight the variety of the subject and to pinpoint the many gaps in our knowledge along with avenues for fruitful further research

Taxonomy of the birds of the world fotolulu,2018-10-30 How do you come up with the idea to list all the birds in the world including the subspecies and to give all birds English names There is a reason for it my favorite saying whose author is unknown Everyone said that s not possible then there was one who did not know that and just did it I am an animal photographer and probably a little bit crazy I ve built a complete animal database for mammals and birds over the last decade This facilitates my work in determining and archiving images and assigning keywords especially among the many subspecies With this book I would like to give all birding friends and ornithologists a complete overview in English For this I have given unique English names to all subspecies The naming should not meet any scientific requirements The names are based on translations from the Latin name geographical distribution areas and the names of the discoverers The entries consist of the scientific name the English name the distribution areas and the author I wish you a lot of fun with this book but especially while watching the fascinating birdlife fotolulu

Evolutionary Biomechanics Graham Taylor, Adrian Thomas, 2014-01-02 Evolutionary biomechanics is the study of evolution through the analysis of biomechanical systems Its unique advantage is the precision with which physical constraints and performance can be predicted from first principles Instead of reviewing the entire breadth of the biomechanical literature a few key examples are explored in depth as vehicles for discussing fundamental concepts analytical techniques and evolutionary theory Each chapter develops a conceptual theme developing the underlying theory and techniques required for analyses in evolutionary biomechanics Examples from terrestrial biomechanics metabolic scaling and bird flight are used to analyse how physics constrains the design space that natural selection is free to explore and how adaptive evolution finds solutions to the trade offs between multiple complex conflicting performance objectives Evolutionary Biomechanics is suitable for graduate level students and professional researchers in the fields of biomechanics physiology evolutionary biology and palaeontology It will also be of relevance and use to researchers in the physical sciences and engineering new hierarchies of political and social control Architecture and Tourism in Italian Colonial Libya shows how Italian authorities used the contradictory forces of tradition and modernity to both legitimize their colonial enterprise and construct a vital tourist industry Although most tourists sought to escape the trappings of the metropole in favor of experiencing difference that difference was almost always framed contained and even defined by Western culture McLaren argues that the modern and the traditional were entirely constructed by colonial authorities who balanced their need to project an image of a modern and efficient network of travel and accommodation with the necessity of preserving the characteristic qualities of the indigenous culture What made the tourist experience in Libya distinct from that of other tourist destinations was the constant oscillation between modernizing and preservation tendencies The movement between these forces is reflected in the structure of the book which proceeds from the broadest level of inquiry into the Fascist colonial project in Libya to the tourist organization itself and finally into the architecture of the tourist environment offering a way of viewing state driven modernization projects and notions of modernity from a historical and geographic perspective This is an important book for architectural historians and for those interested in colonial and postcolonial studies as well as Italian studies African history literature and cultural studies more generally
