Sanders, 2003-06-30 The School to Work movement came together as a major national force for educational reform in the late 1980s and reached its peak in 1994 with the passage of the School to Work Opportunities Act Throughout the 1990s the movement had a substantial record of creativity and accomplishment Among other things it hastened the spread of career development activities for all students strengthened ties between schools and local employers and supported the creation of many innovative work based education programs By the end of the decade however the influence of the movement had begun to decline as other reform movements came to dominate the national educational landscape The book documents the successes and failures of the STW movement during this dramatic decade and assesses the movement's prospects for the future The book's chapters are written by the nation's top scholars in the STW field and focus on all aspects of the STW movement Among the topics covered are STW implementation and participation career academies education and employment effects of STW participation the role of STW programming in the new economy the college for all movement and STW pedagogy Implementing Randomized Field Trials in Education National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Center for Education, Committee on Research in Education, 2004-04-21 The central idea of evidence based education that education policy and practice ought to be fashioned based on what is known from rigorous research offers a compelling way to approach reform efforts Recent federal trends reflect a growing enthusiasm for such change Most visibly the 2002 No Child Left Behind Act requires that scientifically based education research drive the use of federal education funds at the state and local levels This emphasis is also reflected in a number of government and nongovernment initiatives across the country As consensus builds around the goals of evidence based education consideration of what it will take to make it a reality becomes the crucial next step In this context the Center for Education of the National Research Council NRC has undertaken a series of activities to address issues related to the quality of scientific education research In 2002 the NRC released Scientific Research in Education National Research Council 2002 a report designed to articulate the nature of scientific education research and to guide efforts aimed at improving its quality Building on this work the Committee on Research in Education was convened to advance an improved understanding of a scientific approach to addressing education problems to engage the field of education research in action oriented dialogue about how to further the accumulation of scientific knowledge and to coordinate support and promote cross fertilization among NRC efforts in education research The main locus of activity undertaken to meet these objectives was a year long series of workshops This report is a summary of the third workshop in the series on the implementation and implications of randomized field trials in education Training and Development Yearbook, 1995 Evaluation Forum, Issue 11, Summer 1995, 1995 Abuses in Federal Student Grant Programs United States. Governmental Affairs. Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, 1994 It appears that many of the problems plaguing the Federal Student Aid Programs are also undermining the Pell Grant program not so much from dishonesty on the part of students but by dishonesty on the part of schools This document presents testimony and prepared statements concerning the allegations of fraud abuse and mismanagement in the Federal Pell Grant program and the effectiveness of the Department of Education in detecting and responding to these problems Two thirds of the document is an appendix of 96 exhibits of selected documents letters affidavits and reports from witnesses in order of their appearance before the committee Among the witnesses testifying before the committee were the following individuals Senator Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island Richard C Stiener Director of the Office of Special Investigations U S General Accounting office James B Thomas Jr Inspector General U S Department of Education David A Longanecker Assistant Secretary Office of Postsecondary Education U S Department of Education and Sister Janet Fitzgerald President of Molloy College Long Island New York GLR Social Policies for Children Irwin Garfinkel, Jennifer L. Hochschild, Sara S. McLanahan, 2001-08-09 Successful social policies for children are critical to America's future Yet the status of children in America suggests that the nation's policies may not be serving them well Infant and child mortality rates in the U S remain high compared to other western industrialized nations child poverty rates have worsened in the past decade poor health care child abuse and inadequate schooling and child care persist This book presents a new set of social policies designed to alleviate these problems and to help satisfy the needs of all children The policies deal with the seven critical domains affecting children from birth through the passage to adulthood child care schooling transition to work health care income security physical security and child abuse While nearly everyone agrees that children are in trouble there is considerable debate over what kind of trouble they are in why this is so and whether government can or should more actively seek to solve these problems Americans are evenly divided on the question of whether children's problems are more economic or moral in origin The seven proposals in this volume both reflect and cut across ideological disagreements Some call for more government others call for less and all call for different government methods for achieving socially agreed upon goals Recommendations include replacing major welfare programs and tax subsidies with a set of universal policies including national health insurance child support assurance and universal child care offering publicly funded vouchers to allow poor children in inner city neighborhoods to choose their own schools using both private and governmental resources to get tough on crime through more stringent criminal justice policies and dramatic social measures and expanding apprenticeship programs for non college bound youths In addition to the editors the contributors are Barbara R Bergmann and Robert I Lerman American University Douglas J Besharov American Enterprise Institute John J DiIulio Jr Princeton University Julia Graham Lear George Washington University and Diane Ravitch New York University Training and Development Yearbook, 1995-1996 Richard B.
