Hopple,2020-12-17 In the aftermath of the explosion of hard data sets in the 1960s for the study of international relations

there has been a movement back toward the use of various experts to quantify the more elusive aspects of the international situation. These aspects range from the beliefs and perceptions of decision makers to the array of stresses that confront nation states both internally and externally. This volume reflects the most recent and innovative work in the use of data generated by academic policy and other experts. The authors discuss expert generated data as a means of data making, data refinement and policy analysis. They present all of the major expert based approaches and offer a variety of methodological and substantive applications.

Intelligence Analysis in Theater Joint Intelligence Centers Robert D. Folker, 2000. A growing number of JMIC students have begun to incorporate replicable research design into their theses. This distillation of Master Sergeant Folker's theses shows how fruitful this approach can be. By taking advantage of on site research funds available from the College he managed in brief visits to four Unified Command Joint Intelligence Centers to carry out a controlled experiment to measure the impact of analyst familiarity with and use of one structured analytic technique hypothesis testing. His findings if corroborated by follow on studies could have a substantial impact on Intelligence Community analytical practices and even some influence on how senior policy officials react to analytical products. Managers of analytical personnel might also note that structured methods would appear from this study of non specialized joint intelligence center analysts to be useful to specialized analysts who may be required to move beyond their areas of deep expertise to cover new or unfamiliar assignments.
