Scholarship And Nation Building:

Editing the Nation's Memory, 2015-07-14 Europe's nation states emerged from a complex of nineteenth century developments in which cultural consciousness raising played a formative role. The nineteenth century reflection on Europe's national identities involved a re-inventory and revalorisation of the vernacular cultural past and above all the nation's literary heritage. Everywhere in Europe foundational texts including medieval epics and romances, ancient laws and chronicles were retrieved from their obscure repositories. In new printed editions prepared according to the emerging academic standards of textual scholarship, they were appropriated, contested and canonised as public symbols of the nation's permanence in history. This often neglected but crucially important Europe-wide process of editing the nation's memory involved old states and emerging nations, large and small, countries, metropolitan and peripheral regions; it straddled politics, the academic professionalization of textual scholarship and of the human sciences and literary taste. This collection of studies by outstanding specialists offers a comparative synopsis on exemplary cases from all corners of the European continent.

Scholarship and Nation Building John E. Craig, 1984 Soviet Nation-Building in Central Asia Grigol Ubiria, 2015-09-16 The demise of the Soviet Union in 1991 resulted in new state-led nation building projects in Central Asia. The emergence of independent republics spawned a renewed Western scholarly interest in the region's nationality issues. Presenting a detailed study, this book examines the state-led nation building projects in the Soviet republics of Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan. Exploring the degree, forms and ways of the Soviet state involvement in creating Kazakh and Uzbek nations, this book places the discussion within the theoretical literature on nationalism. The author argues that both Kazakh and Uzbek nations are artificial constructs of Moscow-based Soviet policy makers of the 1920s and 1930s. This book challenges existing arguments in current scholarship by bringing some new and alternative insights into the role of indigenous Central Asian and Soviet officials in these nation building projects. It goes on to critically examine post-Soviet official Kazakh and Uzbek historiographies according to which Kazakh and Uzbek peoples had developed national collective identities and loyalties long before the Soviet era. This book will be a useful contribution to Central Asian History and Politics as well as studies of Nationalism and Soviet Politics.

Nation-building and Identities in Post-Soviet Societies Andrea Friedli, Aline Gohard-Radenkovic, François Ruegg, 2017 Research by social scientists on multicultural and multilingual post-Soviet societies is manifold. However, there rarely exists a dialogue between academic fields, traditions and ideologies. This book critically reunites different academic generations and traditions, different disciplines and different geographical and cultural backgrounds by keeping the plurality of the approaches. The contributions discuss the roles of ideologies, education and ethnic, linguistic and religious identities in the post-Soviet nation building processes. The included case studies show continuities and discontinuities in the ideological and political aspects of nation building and identity management in post-Soviet societies. Simpson, 2018-10-13 This book is a response to the binary thinking and misuse of history that characterize contemporary immigration debates Subverting the traditional injunction directed at migrants to go back to where they came from it highlights the importance of the past to contemporary discussions around migration It argues that historians have a significant contribution to make in this respect and shows how this can be done with chapters from scholars in Asia Europe Australasia and North America Through their work on global transnational and national histories of migration an alternative view emerges one that complicates our understanding of 21st century migration and reasserts movement as a central dimension of the human condition History, Historians and the Immigration Debate makes the case for historians to assert themselves more confidently as expert commentators offering a reflection on how we write migration history today and the forms it might take in the future

Civil War and Agrarian Unrest Enrico Dal Lago, 2018-03-15 Between 1861 and 1865 both the Confederate South and Southern Italy underwent dramatic processes of nation building with the creation of the Confederate States of America and the Kingdom of Italy in the midst of civil wars This is the first book that compares these parallel developments by focusing on the Unionist and pro Bourbon political forces that opposed the two new nations in inner civil conflicts Overlapping these conflicts were the social revolutions triggered by the rebellions of American slaves and Southern Italian peasants against the slaveholding and landowning elites Utilizing a comparative perspective Enrico Dal Lago sheds light on the reasons why these combined factors of internal opposition proved fatal for the Confederacy in the American Civil War while the Italian Kingdom survived its own civil war At the heart of this comparison is a desire to understand how and why nineteenth century nations rose and either endured or disappeared
