starvation Prit Buttar tells the story of how the siege was finally broken The Red Army had suffered multiple setbacks in the preceding two years but achieved a partial success by breaking the blockage in early 1943 However this was followed by further failed attempts to lift the siege completely But by simply enduring the siege in the face of impossible odds Russian soldiers and civilians beat the Germans By the end of 1943 the German forces themselves broken by deprivations and extreme weather began to pull back Here was the opportunity the Soviet forces had been waiting for The Red Army launched a decisive attack that broke through and ended the siege Their determination to hold out has become a hugely significant part of Russian history the echoes of the battle helping to define both a country and its politics This compelling history uses original Russian source material to vividly describe the deprivations visited upon those trapped But it also details the tactical successes and strategic failures of both sides as well as the appalling war crimes that have forever stained the ground in and around this historic city

Romanticism and Film Will Kitchen, 2020-11-26 The relationship between Romanticism and film remains one of the most neglected topics in film theory and history with analysis often focusing on the proto cinematic significance of Richard Wagner's music dramas One new and interesting way of examining this relationship is by looking beyond Wagner and developing a concept of audio visual explanation rooted in Romantic philosophical aesthetics and employing it in the analysis of film discourse and representation Using this concept of audio visual explanation the cultural image of the Hungarian pianist and composer Franz Liszt a contemporary of Wagner and another significant practitioner of Romantic audio visual aesthetics is examined in reference to specific case studies including the rarely explored films Song Without End 1960 and Lisztomania 1975 This multifaceted study of film discourse and representation employs Liszt as a guiding thread structuring a general exploration of the concept of Romanticism and its relationship with film more generally This exploration is supported by new theories of representation based on schematic cognition the philosophy of explanation and the recently developed film theory of Jacques Rancière Individual chapters address the historical background of audio visual explanation in Romantic philosophical aesthetics Liszt's role in the historical discourses of film and film music and various filmic representations of Liszt and his compositions Throughout these investigations Will Kitchen explores the various ways that films explain or make sense of things through a Romantic aesthetic combination of sound and vision
