Women, Love, and Commodity Culture in British Romanticism Professor Daniela Garofalo, 2013-05-28 Offering a new understanding of canonical Romanticism Daniela Garofalo suggests that representations of erotic love in the period have been largely misunderstood Commonly understood as a means for transcending political and economic realities love for several canonical Romantic writers offers instead a contestation of those realities Garofalo argues that Romantic writers show that the desire for transcendence through love mimics the desire for commodity consumption and depends on the same dynamic of delayed fulfillment that was advocated by thinkers such as Adam Smith As writers such as William Blake Lord Byron Sir Walter Scott John Keats and Emily Bront engaged with the period's concern with political economy and the nature of desire they challenged stereotypical representations of women either as self denying consumers or as intemperate participants in the market economy Instead their works show the importance of women for understanding modern economics with women's desire conceived as a force that not only undermines the political economy's emphasis on productivity growth and perpetual consumption but also holds forth the possibility of alternatives to a system of capitalist exchange

Love in America Francesca M. Cancian, 1990-08-31 In the last twenty five years Americans have gained considerable freedom in their personal lives Relationships are now more flexible and self development has become a primary goal for both men and women Most scholars have criticized this trend to greater freedom arguing that it undermines family bonds and promotes selfishness and extreme independence Francesca Cancian is more optimistic In this book she shows that many American couples succeed in combining self development with commitment and that interdependence not independence is their ideal In interdependent relationships love and self development do not conflict but reinforce each other Love in America compares traditional forms of marriage with these newer forms of close relationships Starting with the nineteenth century Cancian shows how gender roles became polarized with love which was identified with emotional expression no practical help being the responsibility of women while self development was regarded as a masculine concern These traditional images of love and relationships are still held by many Americans today even though as Cancian points out this can lead to marital conflict and individual stress and illness By contrast new images of love emphasizing self development for men and women and flexible androgynous roles began to emerge around 1900 accelerating in the 1960s She concludes that this trend to self development and androgyny will continue but that whether it will lead to more interdependent relationships or to more independence and isolation depends partly on economic and political changes in the wider society The evidence for Cancian's argument comes from sociological historical and psychological sources Her book will interest readers in these disciplines as well as appeal to a wide general audience

Love Erotici The Tao of Islam Sachiko Murata, 1992-03-23 The Tao of Islam is a rich and diverse anthology of Islamic teachings on the nature of the relationships between God and the world the world and the human being and the human being and God Focusing on gender symbolism Sachiko Murata shows that Muslim authors frequently analyze the divine reality and its connections with the cosmic and human domains with a view toward a complementarity or polarity of principles that is analogous to the Chinese idea of yin yang Murata believes that the unity of Islamic thought is found not so much in the ideas discussed as in the types of relationships that are set up among realities She pays particular attention to the views of various figures commonly known as Sufis and philosophers since they approach these topics with a flexibility and subtlety not found in other schools of thought She translates several hundred pages most for the first time from more than thirty important Muslims including the Ikhwan al Safa Avicenna and Ibn al Arabi

Love, Intimacy and Power Katie Barclay, 2013-07-19 Winner of the 2012 Senior Hume Brown Prize in Scottish History and the 2012 Women's History Network UK Book Prize Through an analysis of the correspondence of over one hundred couples from the Scottish elites across the seventeenth to nineteenth centuries this book explores how ideas around the nature of emotional intimacy love and friendship within marriage adapted to a modernising economy and society Patriarchy continued to be the central model for marriage across the period and as a result women found spaces to hold power within the family but could not translate it to power beyond the household Comparing the Scottish experience to that across Europe and North America Barclay shows that throughout the eighteenth century far from being a side note in European history Scottish ideas about gender and marriage became culturally dominant Now available in paperback this book will be vital to those studying and teaching Scottish social history and those interested in the history of marriage and gender It will also appeal to feminists interested in the history of patriarchy An important and original study
