Subbotsky,2010-03-31 Magical thinking and behavior have traditionally been viewed as immature misleading alternatives to scientific thought that in children inevitably diminish with age In adults these inclinations have been labeled by psychologists largely as superstitions that feed on frustration uncertainty and the unpredictable nature of certain human activities In Magic and the Mind Eugene Subbotsky provides an overview of the mechanisms and development of magical thinking and beliefs throughout the life span while arguing that the role of this type of thought in human development should be reconsidered Rather than an impediment to scientific reasoning or a byproduct of cognitive development in children magical thinking is an important and necessary complement to these processes enhancing creativity at problem solving and reinforcing coping strategies among other benefits In adults magical thinking and beliefs perform important functions both for individuals coping with unsolvable problems and stressful situations and for society enabling mass influence and promoting social harmony Operating in realms not bound by physical causality such as emotion relationships and suggestion magical thinking is an ongoing developing psychological mechanism that Subbotsky argues is integral in the contexts of politics commercial advertising and psychotherapy and undergirds our construction and understanding of meaning in both mental and physical worlds Magic and the Mind represents a unique contribution to our understanding of the importance of magical thinking offering experimental evidence and conclusions never before collected in one source It will be of interest to students and scholars of developmental psychology as well as sociologists anthropologists and educators

Threads Joseph Abboud, Ellen Stern, 2004-11-02 Designers are great white sharks and we roam the waters ourselves We often pretend to like and admire each other but sometimes we don't even bother to fake it. The fashion industry is as hardworking, incestuous and political as any other and it's virtually impossible given the size of designers' egos to sincerely wish someone else well because behind every false tribute is "It should have been me." So writes Joseph Abboud who fell in love with style at five. There in the dark of the movie house he wasn't just some Lebanese kid with a babysitter. He was the hero in tweeds and pocket squares. That's where he learned that clothes represented a better life, a life he wanted and would grab for himself. From his blue collar childhood in Boston's South End to his spread collar success as one of America's top designers, he has forged a remarkable path through the unglamorous business of making people look glamorous. He transformed American menswear by replacing the traditional stiff shouldered silhouette with a grown up European sensuality. He was the first designer to win the coveted CFDA award as Best Menswear Designer two years in a row and the first designer to throw out the opening pitch at Fenway Park. He's been jilted by Naomi Campbell who didn't show up on the runway for his first women's fashion show and questioned by the FBI who did show up in his office right after September 11 because he fit the profile. He's soared and sunk more than a few times and lived to tell the tales. Threads is his off the record take on fashion from the inside out. With breezy irreverence he looks at guys and taste divas and deviousness, fabric and texture and all those ties. He takes us to the luxe bastion of Louis Boston where he came of age and learned the trade and to the seductive domain of Polo Ralph Lauren where he became associate director of menswear design. He reveals the mystique of department store politics, what's what at the sample sale and who copies whom. He explains the process of making great clothes from conception and sketch to manufacturing and marketing. Whether he's traveling by daredevil horse plunging plane, Paris Metro or cross country limo, Abboud is an illuminating guide to a complex world.

Egg & Spoon Gregory Maguire, 2014-09-09 In this tour de force master storyteller Gregory Maguire offers a dazzling novel for fantasy lovers of all ages. Elena Rudina lives in the impoverished Russian countryside. Her father has been dead for years. One of her brothers has been conscripted into the Tsar's army, the other taken as a servant in the house of the local landowner. Her mother is dying slowly in their tiny cabin. And there is no food. But then a train arrives in the village, a train carrying untold wealth, a cornucopia of food and a noble family destined to visit the Tsar in Saint Petersburg, a family that includes Ekaterina, a girl of Elena's age. When the two girls' lives collide, an adventure is set in motion, an escapade that includes mistaken identity, a monk locked in a tower, a prince traveling incognito and in a starring role only Gregory Maguire could have conjured. Baba Yaga, witch of Russian folklore, in her ambulatory house perched on chicken legs.
