Kandel,David L. Brown,2006-10-12 CALVIN L BEALE In considering how to introduce the subject of rural population change in st the 21 Century I nd myself re ecting on my own experience as a demographer for the U S Department of Agriculture When I arrived at the Department the post World War II modernization of farming was well under way Each year my colleague Gladys Bowles and I had the unpopular task of announcing how much the farm population had decreased in the prior year It was hard to say that the phenomenon was someone s fault Dramatic reductions in labor requirements per unit of agricultural output were occurring everywhere and not just in the United States But politically blame had to be assigned and whichever political party was not in the White House was certain to place the blame squarely on the current administration The demographic consequences of this trend were major In a 22 year period from 1941 to 1962 the net loss of farm population from migration and cessation of farming averaged over a million people per year It took eight years after the war before an administration was willing to begin to talk about the need to diversify rural employment By that time farm residents had already become a minority of rural people However well into the 1970s I continued to receive inquiries from people who still equated rural with farm or who could not envision what rural nonfarm people did for a living Rural development programs United States. Congress. House. Committee on Agriculture. Subcommittee on Conservation, Credit, Rural Development, and Research,2006 Rebuilding Native Nations Miriam Jorgensen,2007-12-13 A revolution is underway among the Indigenous nations of North America It is a quiet revolution largely unnoticed in society at large But it is profoundly important From High Plains states and Prairie Provinces to southwestern deserts from Mississippi and Oklahoma to the northwest coast of the continent Native peoples are reclaiming their right to govern themselves and to shape their future in their own ways Challenging more than a century of colonial controls they are addressing severe social problems building sustainable economies and reinvigorating Indigenous cultures In effect they are rebuilding their nations according to their own diverse and often innovative designs Produced by the Native Nations Institute for Leadership Management and Policy at the University of Arizona and the Harvard Project on American Indian Economic Development this book traces the contours of that revolution as Native nations turn the dream of self determination into a practical reality Part report part analysis part how to manual for Native leaders it discusses strategies for governance and community and economic development being employed by American Indian nations and First Nations in Canada as they move to assert greater control over their own affairs Rebuilding Native Nations provides guidelines for creating new governance structures rewriting constitutions building justice systems launching nation owned enterprises encouraging citizen entrepreneurs developing new relationships with non Native governments and confronting the crippling legacies of colonialism For nations that wish to join that revolution or for those who simply want to understand the transformation now underway across Indigenous North America this book is a critical resource

Building Rural Community Resilience Through Innovation and Entrepreneurship Charlie French, 2022-02-27

Drawing from empirical analyses, case studies, and a synthesis of best practices, this book explores how innovation manifests itself in rural places and how it contributes to entrepreneurial development and resilience. Innovation in rural places may come about as a result of new forms of collaboration, policies that leverage rural assets, and address critical service or product gaps. Novel strategies for accessing financial capital, infusion of arts into aspects of community life, and cultivation of networks that bridge entrepreneurs, organizations, and institutions. The chapters illustrate how a number of innovation-related characteristics relate to economic vibrancy in rural places, such as a strong connection to the arts, adaptive and sustainable use of natural resources, value chain, integrated food systems, robust bridging social capital networks, creative leveraging of technology, and presence of innovation-focused entrepreneurs. Through exploration of these and other topics, this book will provide insights and best practices for rural community and economic development scholars and practitioners seeking to strengthen the rural innovation ecosystem. Federal Register, 2008-06-16 Economic Review, 2006 Local

Economic and Employment Development \(LEED\) Entrepreneurship A Catalyst for Urban Regeneration OECD, 2004-12-14

Entrepreneurship and urban regeneration policy have traditionally been treated as separate fields. This volume is one of the first to focus explicitly on the links between the two, examining how policy can help regenerate inner cities and other areas of urban distress.
