Upcycle Your Congregation Sarah Lammert,2018 Enhancing the quality of congregational life doesn t always require huge outlays of time and treasure There are many ways we can upcycle the things we already do in our churches with resources we already have These nine engaging essays from Unitarian Universalist leaders in the field show creative ways to transform the main ingredients of our congregations into something relevant innovative and new Music Education as Critical Theory and Practice Lucy Green,2017-07-05 This collection of previously published articles chapters and keynotes traces both the theoretical contribution of Lucy Green to the emergent field of the sociology of music education and her radicalhands on practical work in classrooms and instrumental studios The selection contains a mixture of material from essays that have appeared in major journals and books to some harder to find publications It spans issues from musical meaning ideology identity and gender in relation to music education to changes and challenges in music curricula and pedagogy and includes Green s highly influential work on bringing informal learning into formal music education settings A newly written introduction considers the relationship between theory and practice and situates each essay in relation to some of the major influences within and beyond the field of music education which affected Green's own intellectual journey from the 1970s to the present day

Sociology and Music Education Ruth Wright, 2017-07-05 Sociology and Music Education addresses a pressing need to provide a sociological foundation for understanding music education. The music education community academic and professional has become increasingly aware of the need to locate the issues facing music educators within a broader sociological context. This is required both as a means to deeper understanding of the issues themselves and as a means to raising professional consciousness of the macro issues of power and politics by which education is often constrained. The book outlines some introductory concepts in sociology and music education and then draws together seminal theoretical insights with examples from practice with innovative applications of sociological theory to the field of music education. The editor has taken great care to select an international community of experienced researchers and practitioners as contributors who reflect current trends in the sociology of music education in Europe and the UK. The book concludes with an Afterword by Christopher Small.

Evaluating Creativity Dr Julian Sefton-Green, Julian Sefton-Green, Rebecca Sinker, 2005-08-12 Evaluating Creative Practice discusses the function of evaluation in general, the role of formal assessment and its relation with informal evaluation, the role of the audience for the creative product, the value of making within the subject discipline, the balance within the subject paid to product and process, the role of reflection and the place of the student's voice. Examples of practice from subject disciplines: English, Art, Music, Drama, Media Studies, Design and Technology, Gallery Education and Digital Arts will enable those involved with primary, secondary, further, higher, gallery and community education to learn from each other and to develop a coherent approach to the range of creative work produced by young people. By focusing on questions of evaluation and containing a range of practical examples, the book sets an agenda for creative work by young people in the school curriculum and beyond.

Music and Marx Regula Burckhardt Qureshi, 2013-11-05 Well known contributors analyze the ways in which Marxist thought enters into music discourse. Exploring everything from Marxism in hip hop to feudal properties of Hindustani music to revolutionary music of Central America, the essays in this book find surprising paradigm shifting revelations. This book will revolutionize the way music production and consumption is viewed. First published in 2002.

Virtual Music William Duckworth, 2013-01-11 Virtual Music: How the Web Got Wired for Sound is a personal story of how one composer has created new music on the web, a history of interactive music and a guide for aspiring musicians who want to harness the new creative opportunities offered by web composing. Microanalysis in Music Therapy Thomas Wosch, Tony Wigram, 2007-07-15 The contributors to this groundbreaking book look at methods of micro process analyses used in a variety of music therapy contexts, both clinical and research based. They outline their methods and also give examples of the practical application of microanalysis from their clinical experience.

Music in the Late Twentieth Century Richard Taruskin, 2006-08-14 The universally acclaimed and award winning Oxford History of Western Music is the eminent musicologist Richard Taruskin's provocative erudite telling of the story of Western music from its earliest days to the present. Each book in this superlative five volume set illuminates through a representative sampling of masterworks the themes, styles and currents that give shape and direction to a significant period in the history of Western music. Music in the Late Twentieth Century is the final installment of the set covering the years from the end of World War II to the present. In these pages Taruskin illuminates the great compositions of recent times offering insightful analyses of works by Aaron Copland, John Cage, Milton Babbitt, Benjamin Britten, Steve Reich and Philip Glass among many others. He also looks at the impact of electronic music and computers, the rise of pop music and rock n roll, the advent of postmodernism and the contemporary music of Laurie Anderson, John Zorn and John Adams. Laced with brilliant observations, memorable musical analysis and a panoramic sense of the interactions between history, culture, politics, art, literature, religion and music, this book will be essential reading for anyone who wishes to understand this rich and diverse period.

How Popular Musicians

Learn Lucy Green, 2017-03-02 Popular musicians acquire some or all of their skills and knowledge informally outside school or university and with little help from trained instrumental teachers. How do they go about this process? Despite the fact that popular music has recently entered formal music education, we have as yet a limited understanding of the learning practices adopted by its musicians. Nor do we know why so many popular musicians in the past turned away from music education or how young popular musicians today are responding to it. Drawing on a series of interviews with musicians aged between fifteen and fifty, Lucy Green explores the nature of pop musicians' informal learning practices, attitudes and values, the extent to which these altered over the last forty years and the experiences of the musicians in formal music education. Through a comparison of the characteristics of informal pop music learning with those of more formal music education, the book offers insights into how we might reinvigorate the musical involvement of the population. Could the creation of a teaching culture that recognizes and rewards aural imitation, improvisation and experimentation as well as commitment and passion encourage more people to make music? Since the hardback publication of this book in 2001, the author has explored many of its themes through practical work in school classrooms. Her follow up book Music Informal Learning and the School: A New Classroom Pedagogy (2008) appears in the same Ashgate series.
