Norah's Nasty Knickers:

Norah's Nasty Knickers Gez Walsh, 2002-06 Norah's Nasty Knickers are the nastiest nether garments in the known universe But it isn't the knickers themselves that are nasty it's their owner when she's got them on Why does Norah turn into such an evil nagbag when she's wearing her nasty knickers That's a question for the reader to decide as they embark on yet another strange journey into the mind of Gez Walsh It turns out the knickers have had a spell cast on them by an evil witch by the way and after escaping of their own accord they eventually end up by being owned by Anne Robinson But that as they say is another story Norah's Nasty Knickers Gez Walsh, 2002 Norah Hoult's Poor Women! Kathleen P.

Costello-Sullivan, 2016-12 Irish author Eleanor Norah Hoult 1898-1984 travelled in prominent literary circles and corresponded actively with some of the leading Irish authors of the early twentieth century including James Stephens Brigid Brophy Sean O'Casey and Sean O'Faolain Despite her reputation and a forty-four year publishing career Hoult's oeuvre remains surprisingly neglected This edition seeks to rectify that critical oversight by introducing Hoult's short story collection Poor Women to a new generation of readers Hoult is often compared to writers such as Kate O'Brien and Edna O'Brien for her representations of the oppressive facets of Catholicism Less explored is her engagement with emotional paralysis and her detailed representations of widowhood and urban settings inviting comparison to literary giants James Joyce and Mary Lavin These similarities offer venues for further study A Friendly Hearth Norah Baring, 1946 An account of the author's experiences with children evacuees following the blitz on England Introduction Dusty Death J. M. Gregson, 2012-08-01 Everyone in Brunton is happy to see the decaying uninhabitable houses demolished Happy that is until the clearance reveals a grisly secret a corpse of a squatter Detective Chief Inspector Peach investigates but finds that the memories of the victim's former companions are not easily stirred about things they would rather forget Concrete Frog Norah Blas, 2011-06-01 Description This is the story of how the depressed writer came to kill a man she once knew and due to the preceding events was unable to go to the police thus forcing her to dispose of the body herself It is a black comedy written in the first person urging the reader to understand the twisted reasoning behind the decisions the author took It follows the adage of not judging a person until you have walked a mile in their shoes Here the reader is invited to walk that mile and to wear those shoes The story takes the reader through the traumas and trials of a childhood in rural Scotland in the late 70s which is fraught with dangers that moulded the personality of the cowardly writer It leads into an adult life full of promise yet dripping with disappointment until the moment of life-changing clarity arises and a man loses his life The disposal of the body and the decisions made serve to empower the writer and lead her forward into a more fulfilling life and the things which had previously made her weak now give her strength About the Author Norah Blas was born in Scotland in March 1968 at 7.20 am the second of five children Her favourite colour is red and has been since 1989 She can read a good book in an afternoon and once did the Rubik's cube in 64 seconds Previous jobs include Insurance clerk waitress market stall
