The role of the Community Children's Nurse Manager is also explored in depth. An Introduction to the Social History of Nursing Robert Dingwall, Anne Marie Rafferty, Charles Webster, 2002-09-11 Combining the skills of a social historian a sociologist and a graduate nurse this book traces the history of nursing from 1800 and speculates on the future of nursing in the year 2000. Community Nursing and Primary Healthcare in Twentieth-Century Britain Helen M. Sweet, with Rona Dougall, 2007-12-12 This book takes a fresh look at community nursing history in Great Britain examining the essentially generalist and low profile domiciliary end of the professional nursing spectrum throughout the twentieth century. It charts the most significant changes affecting the nurse's work on the district including compulsory registration for general nursing changes in organization training conditions of service and workload. A strong oral history component provides a unique insight into the professional images of district nursing and the complexities of inter and intra professional relationships as well as into the changing day to day working experiences of the district nurse at grass roots level. Use of oral history and records of individual nurses attempts to rectify the tendency of nursing history to view nurses as if they were a homogenous group of professionals thereby recognizing the different experiences of nurses in different regions and environments. The book also considers the degree of influence of medically related technologies and of developments in drugs materials communications and transport on the professional development of district nursing. The work addresses issues of gender relationships central to a nursing profession largely composed of women throughout much of the period working alongside a largely male dominated medical profession. British Women's History, 1996 This is one of a series of bibliographical guides designed to meet the needs of undergraduates postgraduates and their teachers in universities and colleges of further education. All volumes in the series share a number of common characteristics. They are selective manageable in size and include those books and articles which are considered most important and useful. All are edited by practising teachers of the subject in question and are based on their experience of the needs of students. The arrangement combines chronological with thematic divisions. Most of the items listed receive some descriptive comment.

Fever Hospitals and Fever Nurses
Margaret Currie, 2013-01-11 This well researched book provides an interesting study of the development of fever hospitals and fever nursing mainly in nineteenth and twentieth century Britain. It provides new insights into the development of nursing roles and nurse education and looks at the lives of key figures at that time. The text examines how this once important branch of the nursing profession emerged in the nineteenth century only to be discarded in the second half of the following century. Drawing on the work of Goffman and Foucault the study shows how aided by medical advances fever nurses transformed their custodial duties into a therapeutic role and how training schemes were implemented to improve the recruitment and retention of nurses. As standards of living improved and patient's chances of recovery increased many fever hospitals became redundant and fever nurses were no longer required. The wisdom of creating fever hospitals and then disbanding them is questioned in the light of changing disease patterns international travel and the threat posed by biological warfare Nursing History Review, Volume 26 Patricia D'Antonio, PhD, RN, FAAN, 2017-08-15 Nursing History Review an annual peer reviewed publication of the American Association for the History of Nursing is a showcase for the most significant current research on nursing history Regular sections include scholarly articles over a dozen book reviews of the best publications on nursing and health care history that have appeared in the past year and a section abstracting new doctoral dissertations on nursing history Historians researchers and individuals fascinated with the rich field of nursing will find this an important resource Included in Volume 26 Different Places Different Ideas Reimagining Practice in American Psychiatric Nursing After World War II Evolving as Necessity Dictates Home and Public Health in the 19th and 20th Centuries Women's Mission Among Women Unacknowledged Origins of Public Health Nursing The Triumph of Proximity The Impact of District Nursing Schemes in 1890s Rural Ireland More than Educators New Zealand's Plunket Nurses 1907 1950 To Care and Educate The Continuity Within Queen's Nursing in Scotland c 1948 2000 The Nurse Apprentice, 1860-1977 Ann Bradshaw, 2017-07-05 The British apprenticeship model of nurse training developed under Florence Nightingale's influence from 1860 at St Thomas's Hospital gained national and world wide recognition Its end was heralded with the publication of the last national syllabus from the General Nursing Council for England and Wales in 1977 This apprenticeship model a crucial part of the history of British health care for over a century is the subject of this book Primary evidence much of it original is gained from Parliamentary debates and reports syllabuses long neglected nursing textbooks major governmental and professional reports and the voices of nurses themselves expressed through their professional journals Primary sources are systematically re-examined and contextually interpreted in the light of new evidence The study in particular interprets the contemporary attitudes and moral values underpinning the apprenticeship system especially the place of vocation The reasons for the ending of this system arising in part from the cultural shifts of the 1960s are explained in relation to this historical moral context The reader sees how the self-understanding of the profession shifts with much tension and disagreement as mores change The book fills a major gap in the history of nurse training by giving a sustained account of the apprenticeship model of nursing in context and charting changing values away from the historic vocational tradition Its copious use of primary sources will make this a key text for nurses historians and policy makers Leadership and the Elder Care Home Sector Nadeem Moiden, 2003 This study was undertaken to explore whether current leadership in the elder care home sector promotes a balance between personal and work life of healthcare staff A case study approach was used to carry out the study using structured interviews semi-structured interview and participant observation as major data collection methods The sample a combination of enrolled nurses experienced and inexperienced carers were representative of the employees in care homes studied This consisted of 18 subjects 10 from a private care home and 8 from a charity care home The structured interviews consisted of all 18 participants and the semi-structured interviews consisted of 6 participants from the 18 2 carers and 1 nurse from each setting For participant observation both homes were observed for

8 days from the three months spent in each During interviews data were collected on the leaders style leaders role staff home life and work life and leaders support During participant observation the work environment climate leader and staff interaction were observed and key points were recorded The data were analysed using the Ethnograph v4 0 a program for the analysis of text based data For the research purpose a codebook of 99 codes that would identify different aspects of the data in the interviews and participant observation was created Content and thematic approach were taken towards analysis using the computer software The result from this study showed that 1 staff are seen to prefer their leader to be democratic as there is room for negotiation participation consideration and understanding 2 the staff s perception of the leader is an individualistic as well as every aspect of their needs being met due to variables such as age gender marital status experience dependants education position and language 3 the level of effect of leadership style on the individual is dependent on individual circumstances 4 the extent to which the staffOs personal and work life balance are not promoted depends in the different combination of leadership style of the leader as leader is not autocratic democratic or laissez faire at all times 5 the more democratic the leaders are the more understanding and flexible they are in promoting a balance between personal and work life of their followers 6 staff with different personal circumstances and background view their leaders differently 7 none of the staff want their leader to be liberal 8 staff psychosocial needs are not with leadership high in autocratic approach These findings have implications for nurse training and education and leadership development Trained appropriately and applying the results and recommendations from this study the leaders will assist towards staff retention increase productivity and increase the quality of care in the elder care home sector and promote a healthy and cost effective workforce
