Pretty Little Girls And Other Mens Wives:

Wives and Mothers, School Mistresses and Scullery Maids Elizabeth Jane Errington, 1995-09-11 Errington explores evidence of a distinctive women's culture and shows that the work women did constituted a common experience shared by Upper Canadian women. Most of them not only experienced the uncertainties of marriage and the potential dangers of childbirth but also took part in making sure that the needs of their families were met. How women actually fulfilled their numerous responsibilities differed however. Age, location, marital status, class, and society's changing expectations of women all had a direct impact on what was expected of them, what they did, and how they did it. Considering women's work within the social and historical context, Errington shows that the complexity of colonial society cannot be understood unless the roles and work of women in Upper Canada are taken into account. American Woman Suffrage Postcards Kenneth Florey, 2016-04-29 American women's suffrage activists were fascinated with suffrage-themed postcards. They collected them, exchanged them, wrote about them, used them as fundraisers, and organized postcard day campaigns. The cards they produced were imaginative and ideological, advancing arguments for the enfranchisement of women and responding to antisuffrage broadsides. Commercial publishers were also interested in suffrage cards, recognizing their profit potential. Their products, though, were reactive rather than proactive, conveying stereotypes they assumed reflected public attitudes, often negative towards the movement. Cataloging approximately 700 examples, this study examines the visual rhetoric of suffrage postcards in the context of the movement itself and as part of the general history of postcards. How to Start Engaging Conversations on Women's, Men's, or Family Studies with Wealthy Strangers Anne Hart, 2007-04-03 Sicilian American Women's Men's and Family Studies Professor, psychoanalyst, and night radio talk show personality Anna Falco's dad always told her that the lower our self-esteem, the more we want to be someone different from ourselves, and the more we want someone different from ourselves. He made a point that the higher our self-esteem, the more we want someone like ourselves. Anna Falco added something more to that: her belief that couples with self-respect will respect each other. Not one of Anna's clients came from families where the husband and wife or child and parent respected one another. That could be one huge reason why family wars grew into world wars. Now family wars had become full-blown race wars in the streets of Los Angeles. Skip an octave and old hatreds of differences fanned flames between the haves and have-nots. She offered to trade the wisdom of age for the energy of youth. But it all boiled down to honor between family members. Anna explained the difference between self-esteem and self-respect. Being an older woman reminded Wrenboy the troubled court-appointed street teen that she had adopted of a mother hen capable of caging his freedom. Her lined face reminded him of his own mortality at a time when he felt invincible and desperately lonely for a loving family. Would he fear her strident voice hammering him back into childhood? Or would he accept her globetrotting to repair the world with kindness? In his search for power and autonomy, he concluded it is easier to rebel. Exhibitors Daily Review, 1925 The Complete Works of Leo Tolstoy Leo Tolstoy, 2023-12-06 The Complete

A Room Without Toys Suzanne Person,2008-12-29 A Room Without Toys is essentially the story of Victoria Windsor beautiful and brilliantly gifted star of the London stage and apparently a woman to be envied Yet when we go behind the velvet curtain which would ordinarily separate the actress from her audience we find the reality of her life to be quite different From a childhood which with one touching exception is a lonely one we follow her through the frustration of endless auditions to the years of growing theatrical renown years which at the same time are ironically the emptiest of her life and finally to her meeting with the one man able to awaken her to her full potential both as a human being and as a woman The theme of all this is stated in the title for through much of Victorias life she is indeed like a child in a room without toys Many different elements combine to make this a compelling and yet highly readable novel 1 A strong central character equally as fascinating as any of the real life actresses who has recently felt the urge to tell all in an autobiography 2 The elegance and charm of its London setting London with its theatres its parks its pubs its centuries old association with the majesty of the British crown 3 The glimpse it provides of the backstage world of the theatre a world most people would otherwise never see A Room Without Toys is more however than merely the whole constituted of these parts which are after all only things of the surface and the novel goes much deeper than that Will a child starved for love and caring grow into an emotionally crippled adult for whom normal interpersonal relationships are all but impossible It is this vital psychological issue which the work attempts to explore as slowly Victoria Windsor learns to believe in herself learns to trust and most important of all learns to love
