Geological Disposal of Carbon Dioxide and Radioactive Waste: A Comparative Assessment Ferenc L. Toth,2011-02-21
Fossil fuels will remain the backbone of the global energy economy for the foreseeable future The contribution of nuclear energy to the global energy supply is also expected to increase With the pressing need to mitigate climate change and reduce greenhouse gas emissions the fossil energy industry is exploring the possibility of carbon dioxide disposal in geological media Geological disposal has been studied for decades by the nuclear industry with a view to ensuring the safe containment of its wastes Geological disposal of carbon dioxide and that of radioactive waste gives rise to many common concerns in domains ranging from geology to public acceptance In this respect comparative assessments reveal many similarities ranging from the transformation of the geological environment and safety and monitoring concerns to regulatory liability and public acceptance issues However there are profound differences on a broad range of issues as well such as the quantities and hazardous features of the materials to be disposed of the characteristics of the targeted geological media the site engineering technologies involved and the timescales required for safe containment at the disposal location There are ample opportunities to learn from comparisons and to derive insights that will assist policymakers responsible for national energy strategies and international climate policies Advanced Nuclear Energy Systems Toward Zero Release of

Radioactive Wastes M. Saito,T. Sawada,2002-11-11 This volume is a collection of the papers presented at the International Seminar on Advanced Nuclear Energy Systems toward Zero Release of Radioactive Wastes which was held in Japan in November 2000 Scientists and engineers working in academia research organizations and industry came together to discuss the role and contributions of nuclear energy to the environmental issues in the new millennium It provided a forum for open discussions about the pursuit of solutions for the reduction of nuclear wastes based on the accelerator and fusion technologies in addition to the advanced fission technology to harmonize the nuclear energy systems with the global environment It also promoted future international collaboration in the following research fields the role of nuclear energy in the new millennium waste management transmutation of minor actinides and fission products advanced fission systems accelerator driven systems fusion systems nuclear database and advanced nuclear fuel cycles for transmutation of wastes Published originally as a special issue volume 40 3 4 of the international journal Progress in Nuclear Energy Solubility Phenomena in The Context of Nuclear Waste Disposal Xavier Gaona,Sarah Saslow,Hye-Ryun Cho,Taishi Kobayashi,Bernd Grambow,2023-12-13 Safety concepts regarding nuclear waste disposal in underground repositories generally rely on a combination of engineered and geological barriers that minimize potential radionuclide release out of the containment providing rock zone and transport through the biosphere The presence of water however may alter the engineered barrier system dissolve radionuclides and facilitate radionuclide transport that over time may permeate the biosphere So while barrier systems aim to prevent or hinder water from contacting the waste the possible intrusion of aqueous solutions must be considered for several safety case scenarios impacted by the long term evolution of a repository Dissolution and solubility phenomena thus arise as important processes controlling the chemical behaviour of radionuclides and other key materials of relevance in the context of such repositories and their safety assessments The solubility and aqueous speciation of radionuclides is of particular interest as they provide upper limits of water transportable concentrations of radionuclides Solubility phenomena of radioactive and other gases in water provide important information on gas transport and pressure build up Moreover solubility assessments offer insight into time independent constraints on the evolution of the disposal system Particularly important in this regard is the geochemical modelling of radionuclide behaviour in the engineered barrier system as well as in natural aquatic systems along the transport path of radionuclides to the biosphere The obtained information provides valuable inputs that appropriately constrain safety analyses of nuclear waste disposal
