

Radio carbon: Calibration and Prehistory

Edited by Trevor Watkins

The technical complexities of C-14 dating can baffle archaeologists.

This book unravels their reason.
It is by specialists for non-specialists.

The realization that the production rate of C-14 in the atmosphere was not constant undermined the assumption that C-14 years could be equated with calendar years.

Correction by calibration with cross-dated tree-ring radio-carbon samples offers hope, but creates "intercession curves" of baffling variety.

This book explains the issues clearly and simply, provides valuable comparative data, assesses the reliability of the methods, tells how to take a sample, and its use in the dating.
