Scented Gardens For The Blind:

Scented Gardens for the Blind Janet Frame, 1992 Scented Gardens For The Blind Janet Frame, 1964 Scented gardens for the blind ostensibly follows the members of the fractured Glace family suffering from different forms of sensory deprivation the daughter mute the mother blind the father estranged yet each living in a vivid world of their own making While the father looks to the past in his obsessions with genealogy and toy soldiers the modern age hangs over them with the hint of nuclear apocalypse But all is not what it seems Back cover Beyond the Word Jeanne Delbaere-Garant, Scented Gardens for the Blind Helen Carkeek, 197? Scented Gardens for the Blind Janet Frame, 2009 Erlene lives silently inside her mind communicating only with imaginary Uncle Black Beetle Her parents believe that she must be cured of her muteness and that once she is cured she will make a statement crucial to humankind The Subject and the World in Janet Frame's "Scented Gardens for the Blind" Jovita Palmeira, 2001 Scented Gardens for the Blind Janet Frame, 2007 Hailed by one reviewer as likely a work of genius Scented Gardens for the Blind first published in 1963 ostensibly follows the members of the fractured Glace family suffering from different forms of sensory deprivation the daughter mute the mother blind the father estranged yet each living in a vivid world of their own making While the father looks to the past in his obsessions with genealogy and toy soldiers the modern age hangs over them with the hint of nuclear apocalypse But all is not what it seems in this dark and dazzling novel and Janet Frame's narrative virtuosity is expressed in an ending that makes the reader re interpret all that has gone before Modernisation in the form of electricity and the Overspill from London confronts the inhabitants of the small English village of Little Burgelstatham in the richly textured The Adaptable Man first published in 1965 While some amongst the large cast of characters prefer to live in the past and avoid modern life others adapt and welcome its arrival not least Muriel Baldry who can now hang her Venini chandelier and throw a dinner party to celebrate But does adapting to the twentieth century demand darker deeds C K Stead wrote of this comedy of manners that Frame that most authentic firm and unadaptable lady planted landmines everywhere in those bogus English fields Lo Specchio Infranto Anna Grazia Mattei, 1985 Manifold Utopia Marc Delrez, 2021-10-01 This study of Janet Frame's fiction addresses with unusual directness the Utopian momentum that underpins her concern with fundamental social issues traditionally highlighted in existing criticism of her work The idea behind this book is that Frame's critique of society while it is offered for its own sake on one level should not lead us to neglect the author's more speculative interest in an alternative conception of the human person Her engagement in a species of experimental portraiture proves elusive though owing to an indirectness of approach that usually takes the form of thematic circumscription rather than explicit representation For example the figure of the mute child recurrent in her work may well testify to a concern with the plight of the mentally ill but on another level it also points to an envelope of intractable experience which it is the artist's task to penetrate and explain Such aspiration is inseparable from the search for a new medium of expression felt to be necessary if one is to meet the challenge of apprehending the scope of pioneering knowledge This close reading of the novels reveals that the alternative dimension of experience to be found in Frame's novels is characterized by an intact capacity for remembering or for imaginatively re-creating eclipsed aspects of the present Frame's view of Utopia thus turns out to be manifold it is existential and ontological linguistic and epistemological but also historical and political An unravelling of these intertwined strains then serves to clarify the complex question of Frame's post colonial sensibility which cannot be said to rely on a sense of rigid identity whether national or otherwise
