Donald Grant Mitchell, 2019-12-17 In Dream Life A Fable of the Seasons Donald Grant Mitchell weaves a rich tapestry of narrative that intertwines the cycles of nature with the human experience. This allegorical work, written in a poetic and reflective style, explores the four seasons as metaphors for the stages of life, each with its unique challenges and rhythms. Mitchell employs lush imagery and lyrical prose, inviting readers to immerse themselves in a dreamlike landscape that celebrates the interplay between the ephemeral beauty of nature and the quest for meaning in existence. Through the lens of pastoral simplicity, the book evokes the thematic depth characteristic of the American Romantic period, resonating with the concurrent transcendentalist movement of the 19th century. Donald Grant Mitchell, an influential American author and critic, drew inspiration from his own idyllic rural upbringing and his profound appreciation for nature. His experiences as an early advocate for agricultural reform and an educator reflect his deep engagement with the themes present in Dream Life. Mitchell's literary career is marked by an exploration of both the personal and the collective, effectively bridging the divide between artistic expression and social consciousness. I highly recommend Dream Life A Fable of the Seasons for readers who seek not only an enchanting story but also an introspective journey through the metaphorical landscapes of their own lives. This book offers profound meditations on the passage of time, nature's influence, and the beauty found in life's transitions, making it a timeless exploration of the human spirit.

An Extraordinary Life Richard Kendall, 2010-10-19 Richard Kendall's first book An Extraordinary Life is an extraordinary tour de force. Richard shares with us in a very personal way his passion for music and politics by taking us on a tour of his meetings with the top stars in opera and the legends of the political world, with a few Hollywood stars who happened to be opera lovers as well added to the extraordinary tour. He has a special place in his heart for those individuals among us who can simultaneously create beauty and inspire us but can also exhibit humility and warmth and generosity of spirit, utterly devoid of artifice or phoniness. And Richard, with his own humility and his sheer joie de vivre as well as his comfort with the art of honest conversation, brings out the warmth and the humor in all he meets. It turns out he is the right person in the right place at the right time. In a particularly engaging chapter, he describes his audition for the Los Angeles Master Chorale in front of Roger Wagner, who had a talent for creating fear and awe among those who aspired to join the Chorale. Richard successfully wowed the master by enjoying himself, having a little fun, and most of all, taking the perspective that the audition would be an interesting learning experience. To his shock, Richard had exactly the kind of voice Wagner was looking for. For his opening chapter, Richard selected an apt quote from Marian Anderson, who aspires to a world where we don't see a black singer or a white singer but only see a colorless soul. From the first to the last chapter of the book, Richard clearly has a colorless soul himself, seeing the essential humanity in political figures on the left or on the right and the real person behind the celebrity. The most engaging and touching chapters in the book have to be his sensitive descriptions of his friendships with his two favorite divas, Lily Pons and Joan Sutherland. Both divas clearly knew a kindred spirit when they met him and opened up their hearts to Richard. Sutherland invites Richard's mother, who inspired

Richard's love of opera and his interest in writing to keep her company backstage after one of her numerous sold out shows. And Pons gives Richard a lesson in the proper French pronunciation of Au Revoir after graciously hosting him and some of his music students at her Palm Springs home. When it comes down to it, Richard has clearly created his own extraordinary luck by being extraordinarily humane.

Hove: Bones, 2023-01-10. Bones is a powerful heart-rending novel that provides a sensitive evocation of Marita, a farm worker whose only son joined the freedom fighters in Zimbabwe's war of liberation. He does not return after the war, and Marita is determined to find him or find out what happened to him. This is perhaps a single clear theme in a landscape where women, particularly the poor and the marginalised, suffer many layers of oppression. Marita's courage and endurance are reconstructed through the memories of those who knew her in a language steep in poetry and Shona idiom. Bones, which won the Noma Award in 1989, was Chenjerai Hove's first novel in English.
