Lost in Space Greg Klerkx,2005-01-11 The daring revolutionary NASA that sent Neil Armstrong to the moon has lost its meteoric vision says journalist and space enthusiast Greg Klerkx NASA he contends has devolved from a pioneer of space exploration into a factionalized bureaucracy focused primarily on its own survival And as a result humans haven't ventured beyond Earth orbit for three decades Klerkx argues that after its wildly successful Apollo program NASA clung fiercely to the spotlight by creating a government sheltered monopoly with a few Big Aerospace companies Although committed in theory to supporting commercial spaceflight in practice it smothered vital private sector innovation In striking descriptions of space milestones spanning the golden 1960s Space Age and the 2003 Columbia tragedy Klerkx exposes the real NASA and envisions exciting public private cooperation that could send humans back to the moon and beyond Lost in Space

Finding Lost Space Roger Trancik, 1991-01-16

The problem of lost space or the inadequate use of space afflicts most urban centers today. The automobile, the effects of the Modern Movement in architectural design, urban renewal and zoning policies, the dominance of private over public interests as well as changes in land use in the inner city have resulted in the loss of values and meanings that were traditionally associated with urban open space. This text offers a comprehensive and systematic examination of the crisis of the contemporary city and the means by which this crisis can be addressed. Finding Lost Space traces leading urban spatial design theories that have emerged over the past eighty years: the principles of Sitte and Howard, the impact of and reactions to the Functionalist movement and designs developed by Team 10, Robert Venturi, the Krier brothers and Fumihiko Maki to name a few. In addition to discussions of historic precedents, contemporary approaches to urban spatial design are explored. Detailed case studies of Boston, Massachusetts, Washington D C, Goteborg, Sweden and the Byker area of Newcastle, England demonstrate the need for an integrated design approach, one that considers figure ground, linkage and place theories of urban spatial design. These theories and their individual strengths and weaknesses are defined and applied in the case studies, demonstrating how well they operate in different contexts. This text will prove invaluable for students and professionals in the fields of architecture, landscape architecture and city planning. Finding Lost Space is going to be a primary text for the urban designers of the next generation. It is the first book in the field to absorb the lessons of the postmodern reaction, including the work of the Krier brothers and many others, and to integrate these into a coherent theory and set of design guidelines. Without polemics, Roger Trancik addresses the biggest issue in architecture and urbanism today: how can we regain in our shattered cities a public realm that is made of firmly shaped, coherently linked, humanly meaningful urban spaces.

Review of NASA Plans for the International Space Station National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Space Studies Board, Review of NASA Strategic Roadmaps: Space Station Panel, 2006-05-05. In January 2004, President Bush announced a new space policy directed at human and robotic exploration of space. In June 2004, the President's Commission on Implementation of United States Space Exploration Policy issued a report recommending among other things that NASA ask the National Research Council (NRC) to reevaluate space science priorities to take advantage of the exploration vision. Congress also directed the NRC to conduct a thorough review of the science NASA is proposing to undertake within the initiative. In February 2005, the NRC released Science in NASA's Vision for Space Exploration, the first report of the two studies undertaken to carry out these requests. The second report focuses on NASA's plan for the ISS. This report provides broad advice on programmatic issues that NASA is likely to face as it attempts to develop an updated ISS utilization plan. It also presents an assessment of potentially important research and testbed activities that may have to be performed on the ISS to help ensure success of some exploration objectives.
