Nostalgia Clay Routledge,2015-10-05 Nostalgia is a topic that most lay people are familiar with but until recently few social scientists understood Once viewed as a disease nostalgia is now considered to be an important psychological resource It involves revisiting personally cherished memories that involve close others When people engage in nostalgia they experience a boost in positive psychological states such as positive mood feelings of social connectedness self esteem self continuity and perceptions of meaning in life Since nostalgia promotes these positive states when people experience negative states such as loneliness or meaninglessness they use nostalgia to regulate distress This book explains in detail what nostalgia is how views of it have changed over time and how it has been studied by social scientists It explores issues like how common nostalgia is and whether people differ in their tendency to be nostalgic It looks at the triggers and inspiration for nostalgia and the emotional states that are associated with it Finally the psychological social and behavioral effects of engaging in nostalgia are discussed This volume provides the most comprehensive overview to date of the social scientific research into the complex and intriguing phenomenon of nostalgia It will be of interest to a range of students and researchers in psychology and beyond and its accessible writing style and engaging anecdotes will also be appreciated by a wider non academic audience      Reflecting on the Past, Understanding the Present, and Controlling the Future

Bradley M. Mindich, 2016 Pre nostalgia exists at the intersection of identity memory and temporality The core difference between what is understood to be a nostalgic feeling versus a pre nostalgic feeling comes from the individual's motivation to act due to an instantaneous awareness of or concern with missing something at the exact moment of loss and prior to the creation of a recallable memory The degree scope and nature of the motivation and the thing being missed are specific to the individual at that moment in time and the catalyst for this awareness and its subsequent behavior is primarily due to an engagement with a cultural object The types of cultural objects in question are almost infinite music film cars art or another individual among many others This immediate connection with the object triggers a response from the individual that causes what I have described as a conscious or subconscious temporal compression and a newfound awareness of the perceived distance and proportion between this experience awareness and the individual's past present and future and their understanding of their sense of self This thesis seeks to explore and demonstrate the existence of this virtually undocumented phenomenon via two analytical and interrelated processes First I draw on psychoanalysis philosophy and nostalgia theory as foundational disciplines to document an academic structure of pre nostalgia Second using the medium of film as a cultural object I apply my research to identified characters scenes and soundtracks from several films from the 1980s to objectively demonstrate the manifestation of this phenomenon The purpose of this dual analytical approach is to provide both spectators and evaluators of this theory an environment in which to objectively observe and understand what I believe is an intrinsic phenomenon and my overarching goal is to advance the academic and practical discussion of memory and nostalgia theories
