sites of their family memories On a grander scale this approach leads to a broader understanding of more abstract historical themes and of the province's history and culture It also presents a compelling argument for stewardship of regional history in the face of urbanization and globalization

Trails to Gold
Branwen Christine Patenaude,1995 The pioneer roadhouses between Clinton and Barkerville provide us a living heritage of the colourful era of the Cariboo Gold Rush While thousands plodded toward Barkerville dreaming of paydirt on Williams Creek always seeking a faster route to their motherlode a separate breed of settlers created the shelters that would ease their journey The trail was everchanging and when the rush was over the Cariboo Chilcotin was left with a mosaic of roadhouses and a legacy to build on These structures had their own stories tales of wild nights and human heartbreak sagas of sin and sincerity In her first volume Trails to Gold the author described the early inns primarily south of Clinton which preceded the construction of the Cariboo Road between 1862 and 1865 This volume completes the story of the peak years of a gold rush that British Columbia will never forget

British Columbia by the Road
Ben Bradley,2017-06-07 In British Columbia by the Road Ben Bradley takes readers on an unprecedented journey through the history of roads highways and motoring in British Columbia's Interior a remote landscape composed of plateaus and interlocking valleys soaring mountains and treacherous passes Challenging the idea that the automobile offered travellers the freedom of the road and a view of unadulterated nature Bradley shows that an array of interested parties boosters businessmen conservationists and public servants manipulated what drivers and passengers could and should view from the road When it came to roads and highways planners and builders had two concerns grading or paving a way through the wilderness and opening pathways to new parks and historic sites They understood that the development of a modern road network would lead to new ways of perceiving BC and its environment Although cars and roads promised freedom they offered drivers a curated view of the landscape that shaped the province's image in the eyes of residents and visitors alike
