Military Base Closures David E. Lockwood, 2003 Approximately 13 years ago in December 1988 the first military base closure commission recommended the closing and realignment of 145 US domestic bases and facilities This action was the consequence of the Department of Defense s broad reevaluation of its mission in conjunction with the weakening and ultimate collapse of the Soviet Union There was little need according to the Pentagon to continue to retain the vast Cold War era infrastructure Funds saved from closing down under utilised bases DOD further noted could be used to enhance development of new weapons and improved readiness Three additional rounds followed the 1988 round of infrastructure reductions in 1991 1993 and 1995 Since then no further rounds of base closures and realignments have been authorised by Congress despite repeated requests from the Department of Defense in recent years for two additional rounds The reasons for congressional resistance are two fold First there is concern over a likely backlash from constituents living in or near military installations Second many Members of Congress remain wary about a repetition of the perceived political intrusion by the Clinton Administration that occurred in regard to the 1995 recommendations to close Kelly and McClellan air force bases This book reveals the tension in the military facilities that may yet again be up for closure Also discussed are the issues members of Congress feel need be answered before conducting a new round of base closures when the national security environment is uncertain

Military base closures progress in completing actions from prior realignments and closures. ,2002 Through base realignment and closure rounds in 1988 1991 1993 and 1995 the Department of Defense expected to significantly reduce its domestic infrastructure and provide needed dollars for high priority programs such as modernization With the conclusion of the 6 year implementation period of the last round in fiscal year 2001 the department has closed or realigned hundreds of bases has generated savings from these actions and is in the process of transferring unneeded base property to other users At the same time the communities surrounding the former defense bases continue the lengthy process of recovery from the economic impact of the closure process Our last comprehensive report on the implementation of base closure decisions was issued in December 1998 In that report we concluded that the closure process was generating substantial savings although the savings estimates were imprecise most former base property had not yet been transferred to other users and most communities surrounding closed bases were faring well economically in relation to key national economic indicators In a July 2001 report and August 2001 testimony we updated our closure implementation data and reaffirmed the primary results of our prior work

Military Bases United States. General Accounting Office,1993 This supplement to the GAO report analyzing the Pentagon s selection process for base closures and realignments GAO NSIAD 93 173 Apr 1993 contains letters written to GAO by many interested parties including Members of Congress local government officials and private citizens In some cases the correspondence and attached materials such as analyses and evaluations provided useful leads In other instances the materials added support to issues GAO was actively pursuing Although GAO was unable to follow up on many of the issues because of time constraints it believes that this correspondence may be useful to the Base Closure Commission as it considers the proposed closures and realignments

Military base closures observations on prior and current BRAC rounds : statement before the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission / , Military Base Closures ,2008 The Base Realignment and Closure BRAC Commission submitted its final report to the Administration on September 8 2005 The President concurred with the Commission report and forwarded it to Congress on September 15 2005 The report lists the military installations that the BRAC Commission approved for closing or realigning and their reasons for either supporting or rejecting the Department of Defense s original list of recommended closures and realignments The Commission rejected 13 of the Department s recommendations significantly modified the recommendations for 13 other installations and approved 22 major closures The loss of related jobs and efforts to replace them and implement a viable base reuse plan can pose significant challenges for affected communities While base closures and realignments often create socioeconomic distress in communities initially research has shown that they generally have not had the dire effects that many communities expected For rural areas however the impacts can be greater and the economic recovery slower Drawing from existing studies this report assesses the potential community impacts and proposals for minimizing those impacts Military Base Closures United States. General Accounting Office,2001 The Politics of Military Base Closings Lilly J. Goren,2003 This book investigates new patterns of evasive delegation and dedistributive policymaking by the U S Congress whereby Congress delegates its decision making power to ad hoc commissions or implements constraints that compel it to make decisions within prescribed limits Elected public officials seem unwilling to make or believe themselves unable to be held responsible for dedistributive policy Thus means are devised to actually make the decisions while allowing elected officials to evade responsibility The Base Realignment and Closing Commission BRAC which aimed to get politics out of military base closings is a quintessential example of such means At the heart of these considerations is the question of with whom or where responsibility should rest The American people are left to decide whether to hold unelected and more or less unsupervised individuals commissions and the like responsible for their greater well being while officially elected individuals quietly cede responsibility California Military Base Closures Charlene Wear Simmons,Roger Dunstan,Kenneth W.
