Military Capabilities United States Accounting Office (GAO),2018-05-10 NSIAD 95 109 Military Capabilities Stronger Joint Staff Role Needed to Enhance Joint Military Training      Military Capabilities DIANE Publishing Company,1996-07 Today U S military strategy emphasizes that air land sea special operations forces must be capable of working together in large scale combat noncombat operations Because U S forces must be adequately trained for joint operations this report reviews the effectiveness of the Dept of Defense s DoD management of joint training activities Determines the scope of the DoD s joint training activities the effectiveness of the management of these activities Includes the actions taken any additional actions needed to improve the joint training      Military Capabilities U S Government Accountability Office (G,U. S. Government Accountability Office (,2013-07 Pursuant to a congressional request GAO reviewed the effectiveness of the Department of Defense s DOD joint training activities focusing on the 1 scope of DOD joint training activities and 2 actions taken and additional actions needed to improve joint training GAO found that 1 inadequate Joint Chiefs of Staff JCS oversight has perpetuated limited joint training of U S forces 2 most joint training exercises are conducted to maintain U S access or presence in a region promote regional stability or foster relations with foreign military forces 3 although these objectives are important they have taken precedence over joint military training activities 4 the JCS Operational Plans and Interoperability Directorate J 7 has failed to critically review planned exercises to ensure that they emphasize joint training and to correct past problems develop meaningful standards for evaluating exercises or monitor enough exercises to ensure that training problems are identified and corrected 5 J 7 needs to take a stronger coordinating role for joint training since several entities have responsibility for joint training activities but its staffing level is not sufficient for it to conduct all its oversight tasks 6 it would not be practical to shift the J 7 coordinating role to either the Joint Warfighting Center or the U S Atlantic Command USACOM and 7 the Secretary of Defense and JCS have taken steps to improve joint training such as developing uniform policy guidance and strengthening the roles of the Joint Warfighting Center and USACOM but other units have reservations about new USACOM training strategies      Military Capabilities United States. Lovelace Jr., This is the second in an analytical series on joint issues It follows the authors U S Department of Defense Strategic Planning The Missing Nexus in which they articulated the need for more formal joint strategic plans This essay examines the effect such plans would have on joint doctrine development and illustrates the potential benefits evident in Australian defense planning Doctrine and planning share an iterative development process The common view is that doctrine persists over a broader time frame than planning and that the latter draws on the former for context syntax even format In truth the very process of planning shapes new ways of military action As the environment for that action changes planners address new challenges and create the demand for better methods of organizing employing and supporting forces Evolutionary occasionally revolutionary doctrinal changes result The authors of this monograph explore the relationship between strategic planning and doctrine at the joint level They enter the current debate over the scope and authority of joint doctrine from a joint strategic planning perspective In their view joint doctrine must have roots and those roots have to be planted firmly in the strategic concepts and plans developed to carry out the National Military Strategy Without the fertile groundwork of strategic plans the body of joint doctrine will struggle for viability      Interim Report of the Activities of the House Committee on Government Reform and Oversight United States. CINCs capability to plan joint operations In addition the increased role of the military in ad hoc peacekeeping operations has challenged the U S military s current organizational structure for the quick deployment of troops from the various services Rapid technological advances and post Cold War strategic uncertainty also complicate the U S military s organizational structure     Reports and testimony ,1995     Government Reports Announcements & Index ,1996
