Military Potential Of Chinas Commercial Technology:

The Military Potential of China's Commercial Technology Roger Cliff, 2001 This report examines and rates China's commercial technology in nine industries that have the most potential for supporting military technology development and assessing the prospects for technological progress between 2000 and 2020 RAND Research Brief: China's Commercial Technology. Implications for Future Military Capabilities, 2001 If China's economy continues to grow as expected over the next 20 years by 2020 it will surpass that of the United States in terms of purchasing power Such growth would in theory provide China with the economic base to field a military comparable to that of the United States But in order to become a true military superpower China would need to make major improvements in the technological capabilities of its defense industries One potential source of such improvement could lie in China's civilian industries many of which currently enjoy unprecedented levels of foreign technology and investment In The Military Potential of China's Commercial Technology RAND researcher Roger Cliff investigates the degree to which China's commercial sector could contribute to improved military technology over the next 20 years The study finds that while China is likely to narrow the technology gap by 2020 average civilian and military technological levels in China should be expected to remain significantly behind those of the United States and Japan This failure to catch up does not mean that China cannot present a serious military challenge to the United States however U S policymakers must prepare to address a China whose military technologies continue to advance steadily and one likely to develop strong military capabilities in niche areas Modernizing China's Military David Shambaugh, 2003-03-25 David Shambaugh a leading international authority on Chinese strategic and military affairs offers the most comprehensive and insightful assessment to date of the Chinese military The result of a decade s research Modernizing China's Military comes at a crucial moment in history one when international attention is increasingly focused on the rise of Chinese military power Basing his analysis on an unprecedented use of Chinese military publications and interviews with People's Liberation Army PLA officers Shambaugh addresses important questions about Chinese strategic intentions and military capabilities questions that are of key concern for government policymakers as well as strategic analysts and a concerned public China's Military Procurement in the Reform Era Yoram Evron, 2015-06-26 The decisions that shape the policy of weapons procurement are an important area of national security policy. This is all the more true for China which during recent decades has vacillated between different sources and directions of military build up This book explores the politics of military procurement in China under the successive leaderships of Deng Xiaoping Jiang Zemin and Hu Jintao It shows how China's political and military leaders have sought to adjust military procurement policy to meet China's strategic objectives to relate it to non military needs to strike a balance between the import of weapons and indigenous production and to determine the connections between hardware and other components of military power Exploring in detail five major shifts in the nation's military procurement it traces the considerations and negotiations among

China's civilian and military leaderships By doing so it offers both a conceptual framework and empirical grounds for evaluating the factors that shape China's military procurement directions as well as their limitations prospects and operational implications As the first book to study comprehensively and systematically the attributes shaping China's military procurement it will be of great interest to students and scholars of Chinese politics Chinese history and military and strategic studies A New Direction for China's Defense Industry Evan S. Medeiros, Roger Cliff, Keith Crane, James C. Mulvenon, 2005-12-19 Since the early 1980s a prominent and consistent conclusion drawn from research on China's defense industrial complex has been that China's defense production capabilities are rife with weaknesses and limitations This study argues for an alternative approach From the vantage point of 2005 it is time to shift the focus of current research to the gradual improvements in and the future potential of China's defense industrial complex The study found that China's defense sectors are designing and producing a wide range of increasingly advanced weapons that in the short term are relevant to a possible conflict over Taiwan but also to China's long term military presence in Asia Part of a larger RAND Project AIR FORCE study on Chinese military modernization this study examines the current and future capabilities of China's defense Forging China's Military Might Tai Ming Cheung, 2014-02-24 His collection of industry The goals of this study are to 1 nine essays offers a comprehensive and insightful assessment of the Chinese defense science and technology S civil military integration China's defense innovation system and China's place in the global defense economy Case studies look in detail at the Chinese space and missile industry Constitutes high quality cutting edge research on China's defense industries It should enjoy broad appeal among academics policy makers security analysts and business people in countries around the world Andrew Scobell RAND Corporation Forging China's Military Might belongs in any political science shelf interested in China's issues and international security and considers the nature of China's emergence as a world power Midwest Book Review

Trading with the Enemy Hugo Meijer,2016 In light of the intertwining logics of military competition and economic interdependence at play in US China relations Trading with the Enemy examines how the United States has balanced its potentially conflicting national security and economic interests in its relationship with the People's Republic of China PRC To do so Hugo Meijer investigates a strategically sensitive yet under explored facet of US China relations the making of American export control policy on military related technology transfers to China since 1979 Trading with the Enemy is the first monograph on this dimension of the US China relationship in the post Cold War Based on 199 interviews declassified documents and diplomatic cables leaked by Wikileaks two major findings emerge from this book First the US is no longer able to apply a strategy of military technology containment of China in the same way it did with the Soviet Union during the Cold War This is because of the erosion of its capacity to restrict the transfer of military related technology to the PRC Secondly a growing number of actors in Washington have reassessed the nexus between national security and economic interests at stake in the US China relationship by moving beyond the Cold War trade off between the two in order to maintain American military preeminence vis vis its strategic rivals By focusing on how states manage the heterogeneous and potentially competing security and economic interests at stake in a bilateral relationship this book seeks to shed light on the evolving character of interstate rivalry in a globalized economy where rivals in the military realm are also economically Chinese Responses to U.S. Military Transformation and Implications for the Department of Defense James C. Mulvenon, Murray Scot Tanner, Michael S. Chase, David R. Frelinger, David C. Gompert, 2006-04-05 For the past decade Chinese military strategists have keenly observed the changes in U S national strategy and military transformation This report examines the constraints facilitators and potential options for Chinese responses to U S transformation efforts and offers possible U S counterresponses particularly in light of whether Taiwan moves toward or away from formal independence US-China Strategic Competition Muhammad Ali Baig, 2025-02-18 The book maps the strategic competition between the U S and China its history and the contemporary outlook of their armed forces It analyses the wars fought by each of these forces their military operations operations other than war and draws up a comparative analysis between the military doctrines of both nations The author examines the implications of American and Chinese military doctrine and the varying degrees of cooperation competition and potential conflict in the Western Pacific Finally the book argues for possibilities of cooperation between the two superpowers and suggests ways of minimising potential future conflict The volume will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of international relations military and strategic The Fourth Industrial Revolution and Military-Civil Fusion Yoram Evron, Richard A. studies and Asian studies Bitzinger, 2023-06-15 Advanced commercial technologies offer new opportunities for defense applications that could greatly affect military power and metrics of military advantage This is relevant when it comes to civilian based technological innovations found in the emerging fourth industrial revolution such as artificial intelligence autonomous systems big data and quantum computing Militaries and governments around the world are increasingly focused on how and where advanced commercial technologies innovations and breakthroughs could potentially create new capacities for military power advantage and leverage This process of exploiting civilian based advanced technologies is referred to as military civil fusion MCF This book addresses MCF not only from a conceptual and practical sense but also comparatively as it explores how four different countries the United States China India and Israel are attempting to use MCF to support national military technological innovation It will interest scholars researchers and advanced students of military security and technology studies as well as analysts and policymakers in military and defense organizations The Information Revolution in Military Affairs in Asia E. Goldman, T. Mahnken, 2004-07-22 The contributors to this volume seek to explore the multi dimensional institutional cultural technological and political environments of several Asian states to determine the amenability of those host environments for the adoption adaptation of the Revolution in Military Affairs RMS China's Ascent Robert S. Ross, Zhu Feng, 2008 Assessments of China's importance on the world stage usually focus on a single dimension of China's increasing power rather than on the multiple sources of China's rise including its economic might and the continuing modernization of its military This book offers multiple analytical perspectives constructivist liberal neorealist on the significance of the many dimensions of China's regional and global influence Distinguished authors consider the likelihood of conflict and peaceful accommodation as China grows ever stronger They look at the changing position of China from the inside How do Chinese policymakers evaluate the contemporary international order and what are the regional and global implications of that worldview The authors also address the implications of China's increasing power for Chinese policymaking and for the foreign policies of Korea Japan and the United States Contributors Robert Art Brandeis University Avery Goldstein University of Pennsylvania G John Ikenberry Princeton University Byung Kook Kim Korea University Jonathan Kirshner Cornell University Jeffrey W Legro University of Virginia Jack S Levy Rutgers University Qin Yaqing China Foreign Affairs University Robert S Ross Boston College Akio Takahara University of Tokyo Tang Shiping Nanyang Technological University Singapore Wei Ling China Foreign Affairs University Zhu Feng Peking University Export controls rapid advances in China's semiconductor industry underscore need for fundamental U.S. policy review. ,2002 The United States controls the export of certain technology including some of the equipment and materials used to make semiconductors to sensitive destinations such as China for national security or foreign policy reasons Semiconductors commonly referred to as computer chips are key components in computers communications equipment and weapons systems U S policy on the export of such dual use items goods and technologies that have both civilian and military uses is a subject of continuing debate This policy strives to balance the need to protect U S national security and foreign policy interests with the objective to promote U S trade and competitiveness As part of its efforts to control exports of sensitive dual use technology the United States is a member of the Wassenaar Arrangement a forum of 33 countries established in 1996 to reach multilateral agreements about which dual use goods merit special scrutiny and reporting 1 Report to the Ranking Minority Member Committee on Governmental Mfairs U S Senate Fortifying China Tai Ming Cheung, 2013-04-15 Fortifying China explores the titanic struggle to turn China into an aspiring world class military technological power The defense economy is leveraging the country's vibrant civilian economy and gaining access to foreign sources of technology and know how Drawing on extensive Chinese language sources Tai Ming Cheung explains that this transformation has two key dimensions The defense economy is being reengineered to break down bureaucratic barriers and reduce the role of the state fostering a more competitive and entrepreneurial culture to facilitate the rapid diffusion and absorption of technology and knowledge At the same time the civilian and defense economies are being integrated to form a dual use technological and industrial base In Cheung s view the Chinese authorities believe this strategy will play a key role in supporting long term defense modernization For China s neighbors and the United States understanding China's technological industrial and military capabilities is critical to the formulation of economic and security policies Fortifying China provides crucial insight into the impact of China's dual use

The novel begins with Richard Papen, a bright but troubled young man, arriving at Hampden College. Richard is immediately drawn to the group of students who call themselves the Classics Club. The club is led by Henry Winter, a brilliant and charismatic young man. Henry is obsessed with Greek mythology and philosophy, and he quickly draws Richard into his world. The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him. Morrow is a complex and mysterious figure, and he seems to be manipulating the students for his own purposes. As the students become more involved with Morrow, they begin to commit increasingly dangerous acts. The Secret History is a exceptional and suspenseful novel that will keep you guessing until the very end. The novel is a warning tale about the dangers of obsession and the power of evil.
