A History of the Water Hyacinth in Africa Jeremiah Mutio Kitunda,2017-11-17 Humans and animals are not the only creatures that migrate Plants also do This book is a comprehensive and analytical account of the migration of an Old World plant water hyacinth also known to botanists as Eichhornia Crassipes from the Amazon Basin and surrounding areas to Africa through human agency from about 1800 to the present As an integrative work which benefits from methodologies and conceptual approaches drawn from limnology botany biology geography history ecology and other social sciences and humanities the book further explores the political economic and ecological consequences of the spread of water hyacinth from its native habitat through European botanical gardens to Africa rivers lakes dams and wetlands In part as a narrative of Western tinkering with African ecologies gone awry the study has strong lessons for environmental historians and social scientists as well as contemporary foundations aid workers development experts and African governments Although it may appear to be a micro history of a single plant water hyacinth it illuminates broader issues in the history of the modern environment in Africa and similar studies worldwide This study is primarily rooted on the histories of colonialism bioinvasion environmental realities and experiences in Africa The highly visible pathways of hyacinth s spread across international frontiers along watercourses and communication networks means that not only is this a trans boundary environmental affair but one which directly involves bilateral relations between African states Greater London Edward Walford,1898 The American Child ,1929 The New Statistical Account of Scotland: Banff. Elgin, Nairn ,1845 A History of Mental Health Nursing Peter Nolan,1998 Peter Nolan presents a history of psychiatric nursing which contrasts the distress of those who have experienced mental illness with the pioneering efforts of psychiatrists and psychiatric nurses Women and Religion in the Atlantic Age, 1550-1900 Emily Clark,2016-02-11 Bringing the study of early modern Christianity into dialogue with Atlantic history this collection provides a longue dur e investigation of women and religion within a transatlantic context Taking as its starting point the work of Natalie Zemon Davis on the effects of confessional difference among women in the age of religious reformations the volume expands the focus to broader temporal and geographic boundaries The result is a series of essays examining the effects of religious reform and revival among women in the wider Atlantic world of Europe the Americas and West Africa from 1550 to 1850 Taken collectively the essays in this volume chart the extended impact of confessional divergence on women over time and space and uncover a web of transatlantic religious interaction that significantly enriches our understanding of the unfolding of the Atlantic World Divided into three sections the volume begins with an exploration of Old World Reforms looking afresh at the impact of confessional change in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries upon the lives of European women Part two takes this forward tracing the adaptation of European religious forms within Africa and the Americas The third and final section explores the multifarious faces of the revival that inspired the nineteenth century missionary movement on both sides of the Atlantic Collectively the essays underline the extent to which the development of the Atlantic World created a space within which an unprecedented series of juxtapositions collisions and collusions among religious traditions and practitioners took place These demonstrate how the religious history of Europe the Americas and Africa became intertwined earlier and more deeply than much scholarship suggests and highlight the dynamic nature of transatlantic cross fertilization and influence

The Early Anglo-Saxon Kingdoms of Southern Britain AD 450-650 Sue Harrington, Martin Welch, 2014-07-31 The Tribal Hidage attributed to the 7th century records the named groups and polities of early Anglo Saxon England and the taxation tribute due from their lands and surpluses Whilst providing some indication of relative wealth and its distribution rather little can be deduced from the Hidage concerning the underlying economic and social realities of the communities documented Sue Harrington and the late Martin Welch have adopted a new approach to these issues based on archaeological information from 12 000 burials and 28 000 objects of the period AD 450 650 The nature distribution and spatial relationships of settlement and burial evidence are examined over time against a background of the productive capabilities of the environment in which they are set the availability of raw materials evidence for metalworking and other industrial craft activities and communication and trade routes This has enabled the identification of central areas of wealth that influenced places around them Key within this period was the influence of the Franks who may have driven economic exploitation by building on the pre existing Roman infrastructure of the south east Frankish material culture was as widespread as that of the Kentish people whose wealth is evident in many well furnished graves but more nuanced approaches to wealth distribution are apparent further to the West perhaps due to ongoing interaction with communities who maintained an essentially Romano British way of life
