PETER VIEAU NOW EIGHTY YEARS OLD

MILWAUKEE PIONEER CELEBRATES HIS BIRTHDAY AT HIS MUSKIEGO HOME.

HE TELLS OF THE FIRST WHITE CHILD BORN WHERE MILWAUKEE NOW STANDS.

JOSIEF TROMBLE, BORN IN 1794, ENTITLED TO THE HONOR.

Peter Vieau of Muskego was born in what is now Milwaukee just eighty years ago today. He is the oldest living person born here, and he was born on the grounds now known as Mitchell park.

At 80 years of age Peter Vieau is hale and hearty and bids fair to live a great many years. His father was Jacques Vieau, who lived here between 1795 and 1834, a French trader and adventurer, who raised a family of ten children in this vicinity. Peter's mother was Angeline Lelloy of Green Bay, and her father was Joseph Lelloy. He married a woman of Indian blood, a sister of the Menominee chief, A-see-mee-lum-way, prominent in the early days.

Longevity of His Family.

Mrs. Joseph Lelloy lived to be 105 years of age, and to that branch of the family the vitality of Peter Vieau is accredited. Mr. Vieau is the repository of more knowledge of facts regarding the early French residents of these parts and the Indians who occupied this territory than any other man now living. He speaks French and English fluently and is well educated. He is also familiar with all the tongues spoken by the tribal Indians who inhabited this section, including the Winnebagoes, and professes to speak the Ojibwa tongue as represented by the Oneida Indians near Green Bay.

Mr. Vieau celebrated his eightieth birthday in a quiet way at the Muskego farm home, where he is peacefully spending the winter of his life. There has been considerable talk recently about the first white child born in Milwaukee. Mr. Vieau is not eligible to this distinction on account of his Indian antecedents, but he claims to know who was the first white child, and imparted his information to a friend who recently asked the facts as he personally knew them.

First White Child Born Here.

In the letter written by Mr. Vieau, he tells of the child of Jean Tromble, or Trombley, and says that a child of that family was the first white child born here and that was 106 years ago. He says:

"Jean Tromble, a Canadian from Montreal, came with his young wife to Green Bay in the year 1794 and was an employee of Jonathan Ulrich, an Indian trader at the bay at that time. He remained a while in Green Bay, but failing to get along in a satisfactory manner with his employer, he left him and came to Milwaukee in the fall of 1794, and took up his abode in a log dwelling said to have been erected by Kinzie, the early Indian trader, near what was known as the 'petite roche,' located near the foot of Twenty-third or Twenty-fourth street, on the edge of the Menominee valley. Here in the fall of 1794 was born Joseph Tromble, son of Jean Tromble and his young wife.

"Jean Tromble and family removed to Chicago in 1796, and afterwards to Kaukauba, and later returned to Chicago, but what finally became of Jean Tromble and his son, Joseph Tromble, the first white child born in Milwaukee of whom we have any knowledge, cannot now be stated by the writer."

Other Testimony.

In following up the career of the Tromble family, Mr. Alex. Reardon, one of the oldest settlers of Chicago, was requested to tell what he knew. He has written the following, which probably settles all argument as to the identity of the first white child born in Milwaukee.

"Your letter was duly received saying that you wished me to recall the Tromble family. I did know, in about the year 1836, there was a widow, a French woman by the name of Trombley. She had one son and one daughter; the son was named Louis and the girl named Zoube. The last that I heard of Louis Trombley, he was in Kansas, Shawnee county; that was in the year 1870; the girl, I believe, died at Calumet, in Cook county.

"Mrs. Trombley married a man named John Mann, who was a sergeant in the United States army, stationed at Fort Dearborn, where he got his discharge and married Mrs. Trombley and went to Calumet, twelve miles from Chicago, and kept a ferry boat near the mouth of the Calumet river, as late as 1836, and moved to Council Bluffs, Ia., at the time the Indians went. My father, John R. Reardon, came to Chicago from Detroit in 1798, and commenced trading with the Indians, buying furs and afterwards was made general agent for John Jacob Astor of the American Fur company, and continued until 1836, when the company was dissolved."
