The Cambridge Companion to Opera Studies Nicholas Till, 2012-10-18 The first comprehensive attempt to map the current field of opera studies by leading scholars in the discipline Fromental Halévy and His Operas, 1842-1862 Robert Ignatius Letellier, Nicholas Lester Fuller, 2021-04-20 In his lifetime the opera composer Fromental Halévy was considered the leader of the French school his admirers included Wagner Berlioz and later Mahler Today he is chiefly remembered for his grand tragic opera La Juive 1835 Halévy a native of Paris was active when the French capital was at the centre of the operatic world His 30 operas worked within established genres of grand opéra and opéra comique and many of them attained considerable popularity across Europe and the wider world such as La Reine de Chypre 1841 Charles VI 1843 Les Mousquetaires de la reine 1846 and Le Val d'Andorre 1848 Although acclaimed in their day most have not been staged for decades This study throws light on this shadowy figure looking at his life contemporary opinion about him and most importantly his operas Each one is examined in terms of its origin libretto musical features and place in the vibrant critical journalism of mid 19th century France The book provides musical examples and something of the rich iconography that accompanied the creation of his works The Operatic Archive Colleen Renihan, 2020-04-03 The Operatic Archive American Opera as History extends the growing interdisciplinary conversation in opera studies by drawing on new research in performance studies and the philosophy of history Moving beyond traditional aesthetic conceptions of opera this book argues for opera's powerful potential for historical impact and engagement in late twentieth and twenty first century works by American composers Considering opera's ability to serve as a vehicle for memory historical experience affect presence and the historical sublime this volume demonstrates how opera's ability to represent and evoke historical events and historical experience differs fundamentally from the representations and recreations of other modes specifically literary and dramatic representations Building on the work of performance scholars such as Joseph Roach Rebecca Schneider and Diana Taylor and in consultation with recent debates in the philosophy of history the book will be of interest to a wide range of scholars and researchers particularly those working in the areas of opera studies and performance studies Serial Forms Clare

Pettitt, 2020-06-04 Serial Forms The Unfinished Project of Modernity 1815 1848 proposes an entirely new way of reading the transition into the modern. It is the first book in a series of three which will take the reader up to the end of the First World War moving from a focus on London to a global perspective. Serial Forms sets out the theoretical and historical basis for all three volumes. It suggests that as a serial news culture and a stadial historicism developed together between 1815 and 1848 seriality became the dominant form of the nineteenth century. Through serial newsprint illustrations performances and shows the past and the contemporary moment enter into public visibility together. Serial Forms argues that it is through seriality that the social is represented as increasingly politically urgent. The insistent rhythm of the serial reorganizes time recalibrates and rescales the social and will prepare the way for the 1848 revolutions which are the subject of the next book. By placing their work back into the messy print and performance culture from which it originally appeared Serial Forms is able to produce new and exciting readings of familiar authors such as Scott Byron Dickens and Gaskell. Rather than offering a rarefied intellectual history or chopping up the period into Romantic and Victorian. Clare Pettitt tracks the development of communications technologies and their impact on the ways in which time history and virtuality are imagined. Haydn's Sunrise, Beethoven's Shadow Deirdre Loughridge, 2016-09-06 Introduction audiovisual histories From mimesis to prosthesis Opera as peepshow Shadow media Haydn's Creation as moving image Beethoven's phantasmagoria Conclusion audiovisual returns Music and Historical Critique Gary Tomlinson, 2017-07-05 Music and Historical Critique provides a definitive collection of Gary Tomlinson's influential studies on critical musicology with the watchword throughout being history. This collection gathers his most innovative essays and lectures some of them published here for the first time along with an introduction outlining the context of the contributions and commenting on their aims and significance. Music and Historical Critique provides a retrospective view of the author's achievements in bringing to the heart of musicological discourse both deep seated experiences of the past and meditations on the historian's ways of understanding them. The Other Worlds of Hector Berlioz Inge van Rij, 2015-02-19 Berlioz frequently explored other worlds in his writings from the imagined exotic enchantments of New Zealand to the rings of Saturn where Beethoven's spirit was said to reside. The settings for his musical works are more conservative and his adventurousness has instead been located in his mastery of the orchestra as both orchestrator and conductor. Inge van Rij's book takes a new approach to Berlioz's treatment of the orchestra by exploring the relationship between these two forms of control the orchestra as abstract sound and the orchestra as collective labour and instrumental technology. Van Rij reveals that the negotiation between worlds characteristic of Berlioz's writings also plays out in his music. orchestral technology may be concealed or ostentatiously displayed musical instruments might be industrialised or exoticised and the orchestral musicians themselves move between being a society of distinctive individuals and being a machine played by Berlioz himself. The Operas of Giacomo Meyerbeer Robert Ignatius Letellier, 2006 But these operas are far more than imitations they show an apprehension of convention and genre that is
