Mind The Gap:

Mind The Gap Peter Wilson,2014-06-03 We rarely speak or even write in the complete sentences that are often held to be the ideal form of linguistic communication Language is in fact full of gaps because speakers and writers operate in contexts which allow bits of language to be understood rather than expressed This book systematically analyses this inherent gappiness of language known as ellipsis and provides an account of the different contexts both linguistic and situational which affect its use Peter Wilson draws on a wide variety of examples of spoken and written English and both literary and non literary to present a comprehensive classification of elliptical language that ranges from the conversational fragment and the advertisement to the dialogue of Shakespeare and imagist poetry Mind the Gap shows how ellipsis is a feature of major structural and stylistic importance to our understanding of spoken and written language and will be of interest to undergraduate students of linguistics literature communication and the interrelations between them Mind the Gap

Mind the Gap Mr.Kevin Ross,Mr.Angel J. Ubide,2001-12-01 Assessing the magnitude of the output gap is critical to achieving an optimal policy mix Unfortunately the gap is an unobservable variable which in practice has been estimated in a variety of ways depending on the preferences of the modeler This model selection problem leads to a substantial degree of uncertainty regarding the magnitude of the output gap which can reduce its usefulness as a policy tool To overcome this problem in this paper we attempt to insert some discipline into this search by providing two metrics inflation forecasting and business cycle dating against which different options can be evaluated using aggregated euro area GDP data Our results suggest that Gali Gertler and Lopez Salido s 2001 inefficiency wedge performs best in inflation forecasting and production function methodology dominates in the prediction of turning points If however a unique methodology must be selected the quadratic trend delivers the best overall results Mind the Gap Kris Deschouwer,2019-01-19 Mind the Gap is a book on the difficult times of modern representative democracy and on the way in which political science is trying to make sense of it Forecasting election results has become a very risky business and explaining the often surprising results must increasingly

rely on case by case ad hoc interpretations Old and formerly stable political parties now appear to be very vulnerable because many of their traditional voters seem willing to desert them If voters turn out to vote at all they tend to be very volatile and send out complex messages to decide later than ever what to do in the polling booth to react to short term factors and to follow candidates rather than parties Low levels of trust in political actors and institutions reveal a gap between the elites and the people Belgium is one of the countries where one can witness these debates Yet Belgium is also a special case Not only a gap between elites and citizens but also a gap between north and south animates the political debates The territorial division of the country in two language groups has led to the complete split of the parties and the party system and to the transformation of the unitary state into a complex federal system With on top of all that the European level the lines of representation and accountability in Belgium are extremely opaque Decision making requires subtle compromises between party leaders and sometimes take a very long time to come about Voting in Belgium is however compulsory which means that exiting the scene of democratic representation is not an obvious option Citizens do turn out to vote and do express their views and their discontent Some political parties however do suggest that leaving Belgium behind altogether might be better than just muddling through This book is based on ten years of research on political participation and representation in Belgium by the interuniversity research team PartiRep Using several surveys among the population and politicians voting aid applications focus groups and experiments it draws a picture of a parliamentary and representative democracy that faces multiple tensions and multiple gaps It discusses a wide range of political processes and actors placing them in a comparative perspective and exploring to what extent the Belgian case fits into the general picture The chapters of the book deal with political socialization political parties representation economic voting preference voting and personalized voting democratic preferences identity politics and campaign effects and on the way in which elites and citizens try to find their way and make sense of this complex multi level and linguistically divided country in the heart of the European Union

Mind the Gap Richard G. Wilkinson, 2001-01-01 Inequality kills Both rich and poor die younger in countries with the greatest inequalities in income Countries such as the United States with big gaps between rich and poor have higher death rates than those with smaller gaps such as Sweden and Japan Why In this provocative book Richard Wilkinson provides a novel Darwinian approach to the question Wilkinson points out that inequality is new to our species in our two million year history human societies became hierarchical only about ten thousand years ago Because our minds and bodies are adapted to a more egalitarian life today s hierarchical structures may be considered unnatural To people at the bottom of the heap the world seems hostile and the stress is harmful If you are not in control you are at risk This is a penetrating analysis of patterns of health and disease that has implications for social policy Wilkinson concludes that rather than relying on more police prisons social workers or doctors we must tackle the corrosive social effects of income differences in our society Mind the Gap Nina Namaste, Amanda Sturgill, 2023-07-03 There is growing awareness that global learning is not confined to university credit bearing off campus international programs and that institutions of higher learning have up until now conceived of global education too narrowly Global learning through study abroad and off campus domestic study fits into a larger context of students educational experiences You can find global learning as part of other high impact practices domestic off campus programs undergraduate research and service or community based learning all can be global learning opportunities On campus global learning can occur in the disciplines and in the core curriculum as well Language and culture anthropology sociology and other departments multicultural centers and diversity and inclusivity offices to name a few also teach students to be global learners Global learning pertains to the many staff and faculty educators who intentionally encourage students to engage with and successfully navigate difference Thus there is a growing need for bridging across disciplinary and administrative silos silos that are culturally bound within academia The gaps between these silos matter as students seek to integrate off and on campus learning Higher education needs a new holistic assessment of global learning This book investigates not just student learning but also faculty experiences program structures and pathways that impact global learning and expands the context of global learning to show its antecedents and impacts as a part of the larger higher education experience Chapters look at recent developments such as short term off campus international study and certificate medallion programs as well as blended learning environments and undergraduate research all in the context of multi institutional comparisons Global learning is also situated in a larger university context A Series on Engaged Learning and Teaching Book Visit the books companion website hosted by the Center for Engaged Learning for book resources

Mind the Gap Jos Vaessen, Frans L. Leeuw, 2011-12-31 Over the past twenty to thirty years evaluation has become increasingly important to the field of public policy The number of people involved and specializing in evaluation has also increased markedly Evidence of this trend can be found in the International Atlas of Evaluation the establishment of new journals and evaluation societies and the increase in systems of evaluation Increasingly the main reference point has become an assessment of the merit and value of interventions as such rather than the evaluator s disciplinary background This growing importance of evaluation as an activity has also led to an increasing demand for the type of competencies evaluators should have Evaluation began as a niche area within the social and behavioral sciences It subsequently became linked to policy research and analysis and has more recently become trans disciplinary This volume demonstrates an association between the evaluation tradition in a particular country or policy field and the nature of the relationship between social and behavioral science research and evaluative practice This book seeks to offer comprehensive data which lead to conclusions about patterns that transcend the gap between evaluation and the social scientific disciplines Mind the Gap has a twofold aim The first is to highlight and characterize the gap between evaluation practices and debates and the substantive knowledge debates within the social and behavioral sciences The second is to show why this gap is problematic for the practice of evaluation while at the same time illustrating possible ways to build bridges The book is centered on the value of producing useful evaluations grounded in social science theory and research Mind the Gap ,2001 Taking into account how the Church now engages with mission this report offers recommendations on Continuing Ministerial Education Mind the Gap Geoffrey W.
