Long,2010-11-22 This book reconsiders the traditional correspondence theory of truth which takes truth to be a matter of correctly representing objects Drawing Heideggerian phenomenology into dialogue with American pragmatic naturalism Christopher P Long undertakes a rigorous reading of Aristotle that articulates the meaning of truth as a co operative activity between human beings and the natural world that is rooted in our endeavours to do justice to the nature of things By following a path of Aristotle s thinking that leads from our rudimentary encounters with things in perceiving through human communication to thinking this book traces an itinerary that uncovers the nature of truth as ecological justice and it finds the nature of justice in our attempts to articulate the truth of things

Aristotle's Concept of Mind Erick Raphael Jiménez,2017-07-06 In this book Erick Raphael Jim nez examines Aristotle s concept of mind nous a key concept in Aristotelian psychology metaphysics and epistemology Drawing on a close analysis of De Anima Jim nez argues that mind is neither disembodied nor innate as has commonly been held but an embodied ability that emerges from learning and discovery Looking to Aristotle s metaphysics and epistemology Jim nez argues that just as Aristotelian mind is not innate intelligibility is not an innate feature of the objects of Aristotelian mind but an outcome of certain mental constructions that make those objects intelligible Conversely it is through these same mental constructions that thinkers become intelligent or come to possess minds Connecting this account to Aristotle s metaphysics and epistemology Jim nez shows how this concept of mind fits within Aristotle s wider philosophy His bold interpretation will interest a wide range of readers in ancient and later philosophy

Muses of One Mind Wesley Trimpi, 2009-11-01 Describing how ancient discussions of literature borrowed their descriptive terms from mathematical philosophical and rhetorical disciplines Wesley Trimpi shows that when any one of these three types of discourse was sacrificed to one or both of the other two the resulting imbalance proved destructive to literary discourse Preoccupation with exhortatory rhetorical intention reduced literary works to displays of eloquence or ideology preoccupation with cognitive philosophical intention led to didacticism and preoccupation with formal mathematical excellence resulted in aesthetic expression for its own sake In tracing the relationship of the three disciplines to literary discourse through the Middle Ages this work diagnoses the increase of such reductive preoccupations after the Neoplatonic reconstruction of classical literary theory Since 1600 these imbalances have continued to exist obscured by proliferating and competing theories and methods of literary interpretation Taking theoria in the ancient sense of inclusive observation Professor Trimpi points to an alternative to contemporary critical orthodoxies

This study examines the history of a fundamental problem in Aristotelian cognitive psychology: i.e. the nature and function of the mechanisms that provide the human mind with data concerning physical reality. Chapter I traces the Classical and Arabic prehistory of the Medieval doctrine of intelligible species. Scholastic discussions on formal mediation in intellectual cognition were constrained in essential ways by Thomas. Chapter II analyzes his views on mental representation in the context of the reception of Peripatetic psychology in the West.
