Shafarevich,2012-12-06 I wish that algebra would be the Cinderella of our story In the mathematics program in schools geometry has often been the favorite daughter The amount of geometric knowledge studied in schools is approximately equal to the level achieved in ancient Greece and summarized by Euclid in his Elements third century B C For a long time geometry was taught according to Euclid simplified variants have recently appeared In spite of all the changes introduced in geometry courses geometry retains the influence of Euclid and the inclination of the grandiose scientific revolution that occurred in Greece More than once I have met a person who said I didn t choose math as my profession but I ll never forget the beauty of the elegant edifice built in geometry with its strict deduction of more and more complicated propositions all beginning from the very simplest most obvious statements Unfortunately I have never heard a similar assessment concerning algebra Algebra courses in schools comprise a strange mixture of useful rules logical judgments and exercises in using aids

such as tables of log arithms and pocket calculators Such a course is closer in spirit to the brand of mathematics developed in ancient Egypt and Babylon than to the line of development that appeared in ancient Greece and then continued from the Renaissance in western Europe Nevertheless algebra is just as fundamental just as deep and just as beautiful as geometry

Necessary Conditions of Learning Ference Marton, 2014-06-20 Necessary Conditions of Learning presents a research approach phenomenography and a theory the variation theory of learning introduced and developed by Ference Marton and taken up by his wide and varied following around the world together with their practical applications in educational contexts Reflecting Marton's whole lifetime's work the unique and significant contribution of this book is to offer an evidence based answer to the questions How do we make novel meanings our own and How do we learn to see things in more powerful ways The presentation makes use of hundreds of empirical studies carried out in Europe and Asia which build on the theory The line of reasoning and the way in which the examples are put together is consistent with the theory it is both presented and applied The main argument is that in order to learn we have to discern and to discern the intended ideas we must be presented with carefully structured variation against a background of invariance We then go through processes of contrast generalization and fusion in order to make sense These insights form a practical framework for those who design teaching and teaching materials Necessary Conditions of Learning is a major original work for which scholars of pedagogical theory have been waiting a long time
