Marcia Flesner PhD RN MHCA University of Missouri Columbia From Doody's Review Nursing homes are now the most highly regulated environments in the United States in the service of maximizing the quality of each resident's life. This user friendly guide has been updated to provide all of the requisite information needed by nursing home staff to prepare for a visit from federal surveyors. Peace, 2003-04-03 In our society the overwhelming majority of people die in later life. They typically die slowly of chronic diseases with multiple co-existing problems over long periods of time. They spend the majority of their final years at home but many will die in hospitals or care homes. This book explores the possibilities for improving the care of older people dying in residential care and nursing homes. It argues that there are aspects of palliative care that given the right circumstances are transferable to dying people in settings that are not domestic or hospice based. End of Life in Care Homes describes what happens in nursing and residential care homes when a resident is dying, how carers cope and the practical health and emotional challenges that carers face on top of their day to day work. Based on detailed research from both the UK and US the book shows how the situation can be improved. Nursing and Nursing Education Division of Health Care Services, 1983-02 Results are presented of a study of nursing and nursing education that focused on the need for continued federal support of nursing education, ways to attract nurses to medically underserved areas and approaches to encourage nurses to stay in the profession. of generalist nurses will be sufficient to meet future demand and how changes that could occur in the health care system might affect demand Attention is also directed to how the current and future supply of nurses may be influenced by the costs of nursing education and the sources of education financing and education for generalist positions in nursing In addition the supply and demand situation for nurses educationally prepared for advanced professional positions in nursing is examined The influence of employer policies and practices in utilization of nursing resources on demand and supply is also addressed Finally areas in which further data and studies are needed to better monitor nursing supply and demand are identified In addition to 21 recommendations appendices include information on Nursing Training Act appropriations state reports on nursing issues certificates for specialist registered nurses projections of registered nurse supply and requirements and doctoral programs in nursing SW
