Pioneer Medicine In Australia:

Australia's Toxic Medical Culture Vicki Adele Pascoe, 2018-10-11 This book explores dominance in Australia's medical culture through the positioning of international medical graduates IMGs. It argues that IMGs are othered and ultimately positioned as an underclass, a positioning validated and reinforced by the intersecting inequalities of class, race, and nation. It also suggests that the positioning of IMGs is organised through the dimensions of structural power, hegemonic power, and interpersonal power, which allow an exploration of power relations between the structures of the health system, the Australian medical profession, and the agency of IMGs. The Australian narrative presented to the world espouses a community of social justice and human rights. Instead, an historical lens traces the formation and persistence of difference represented in ethnocentrism, racism, and xenophobia from 1788 to the present. The research presented is multidisciplinary in scope. An anti-oppressive theoretical framework enables the voices of lived experience to penetrate throughout, and a social justice platform engages the participants and the reader into the interwoven conversations. The data set comprises a focus group, 10 individual interviews with IMGs, and a selection of inquiry submissions revealing rich and sometimes shocking evidence to paint a stark picture. Other medical voices join the conversation via media responses to revelations of experiences not only by IMGs but also by Australian-trained doctors. It exposes a toxic culture endemic with bullying and sexual harassment. This book is of interest to practitioners, researchers, and administrators in the fields of medical education, human resource management, legal studies, health sciences, social sciences, health services, government departments, universities, and hospitals, as well as those tasked with duty of care and the provision of a safe workplace. The voices gifted to this study raise awareness of current issues within medicine in Australia at a very personal level and begin to formulate a policy and practical response to address these disturbing revelations. National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1991. APAIS 1991: Australian public affairs information service, Medical Journal of Australia, 1914.

Anatomists of Empire Ross L Jones, 2020-04-17 The 20th-century anatomists Grafton Elliot Smith and Frederic Wood Jones and Arthur Keith travelled the globe collecting, cataloguing, and constructing morphologies of the biological world with the aim of weaving these into a new vision of bio-ecology that links humans to their deep past as well as their evolutionary niche. They dissected human bodies and scrutinised the living, explaining for the first time the intricacies of human biology. They placed the body in its environment and gave it a history, thus creating an ecological synthesis in striking contrast to the model of humanity that they inherited as students. Their version of human development and history profoundly influenced public opinion as they wrote prolifically for the press; they published bestsellers on human origins and evolution; they spoke eloquently at public meetings and on the radio. They wanted their anatomical insight to shape public policy. And by changing popular views of race and environment, they moulded attitudes as to what it meant to be human in a post-Darwinian world, thus providing a potent critique of racism. A Companion of the History of Medicine in Australia, 1788-1939 A.
