Pithouses Of Keatley Creek:

The Pithouses of Keatley Creek Brian Hayden, 1997 Brian Hayden's archaeological case study addresses the development of prehistoric and social and economic hierarchies. This archaeology project encompasses a fascinating range of topics making it an ideal case study for all students of archaeology. It also includes a vivid reconstruction of life in one of the largest and most complex Platean communities.

Complex Hunter Gatherers William C. Prentiss, Ian Kuijt, 2004-09-15 A broad synthesis of the archaeology of the Plateau region of the Pacific Northwest and the evolution and organization of the complex hunter gatherers in general.

Ancient Pathways, Ancestral Knowledge Nancy J. Turner, 2014-06-01 Volume 1: The History and Practice of Indigenous Plant Knowledge. Volume 2: The Place and Meaning of Plants in Indigenous Cultures and Worldviews.

Nancy Turner has studied Indigenous peoples' knowledge of plants and environments in northwestern North America for over forty years. In Ancient Pathways, Ancestral Knowledge, she integrates her research into a two-volume ethnobotanical tour de force. Drawing on information shared by Indigenous botanical experts and collaborators, the ethnographic and historical record, and from linguistics, palaeobotany, archaeology, phytogeography, and other fields, Turner weaves together a complex understanding of the traditions of use and management of plant resources in this vast region. She follows Indigenous inhabitants over time and through space, showing how they actively participated in their environments, managed and cultivated valued plant resources, and maintained key habitats that supported their dynamic cultures for thousands of years, as well as how knowledge was passed on from generation to generation and from one community to another. To understand the values and perspectives that have guided Indigenous ethnobotanical knowledge and practices, Turner looks beyond the details of individual plant species and their uses to determine the overall patterns and processes of their development, application, and adaptation. Volume 1 presents a historical overview of ethnobotanical knowledge in the region before and after European contact. The ways in which Indigenous peoples used and interacted with plants for nutrition, technologies, and medicine are examined. Drawing connections between similarities across languages, Turner compares the names of over 250 plant species in more than fifty Indigenous languages and dialects to demonstrate the prominence of certain plants in various cultures and the sharing of goods and ideas between peoples. She also examines the effects that introduced species and colonialism had on the region's Indigenous peoples and their ecologies. Volume 2 provides a sweeping account of how Indigenous organizational systems developed to facilitate the harvesting, use, and cultivation of plants to establish economic connections across linguistic and cultural borders and to preserve and manage resources and habitats. Turner describes the worldviews and philosophies that emerged from the interactions between peoples and plants and how these understandings are expressed through cultures, stories, and narratives. Finally, she explores the ways in which botanical and ecological knowledge can be and are being maintained as living adaptive systems that promote healthy cultures, environments, and Indigenous plant populations. Ancient Pathways, Ancestral Knowledge both challenges and contributes to existing knowledge of Indigenous peoples land stewardship while preserving information that might otherwise have been lost Providing new and captivating insights into the anthropogenic systems of northwestern North America it will stand as an authoritative reference work and contribute to a fuller understanding of the interactions between cultures and ecological systems

People of the Middle Fraser Canyon Anna Marie Prentiss, Ian Kuijt, 2012 The Middle Fraser Canyon contains some of the most important archaeological sites in British Columbia including the remains of ancient villages that supported hundreds if not thousands of people How and why did these villages come into being Why were they abandoned In search of answers to these questions Anna Marie Prentiss and Ian Kuijt take readers on a voyage of discovery into the ancient history of the St t imc or Upper Lillooet people Drawing on evidence from archaeological surveys and excavations and from the knowledge of St t imc people they find explanations in the evolution of food gathering and processing techniques climate change the development of social complexity and the arrival of Europeans This wide ranging vision of the ancient history of British Columbia is brought to vivid life through photographs artist renderings and fictionalized accounts of life in the villages a guide to the St t imc language and sidebars on archaeological methods theories and debates

The Cultural Landscapes of Port au Choix M. A. P. Renouf, 2011-03-28 Newfoundland lies at the intersection of arctic and more temperate regions and commensurate with this geography populations of two Amerindian and two Paleoeskimo cultural traditions occupied Port au Choix in northern Newfoundland Canada for centuries and millennia Over the past two decades The Port au Choix Archaeology Project has sought a comparative understanding of how these different cultures each with their particular origin and historical trajectory adapted to the changing physical and social environments impacted their physical surroundings and created cultural landscapes This volume brings together the research of Renouf her colleagues and her students who together employ multiple perspectives and methods to provide a detailed reconstruction and understanding of the long term history of Port au Choix Although geographically focussed on a northern coastal area this volume has wider implications for understanding archaeological landscapes human environment interactions and hunter gatherer societies

Prehistory of North America Mark Sutton, 2015-12-22 A Prehistory of North America covers the ever evolving understanding of the prehistory of North America from its initial colonization through the development of complex societies and up to contact with Europeans This book is the most up to date treatment of the prehistory of North America In addition it is organized by culture area in order to serve as a companion volume to An Introduction to Native North America It also includes an extensive bibliography to facilitate research by both students and professionals

Understanding Chipped Stone Tools Brian Hayden, 2022-06-15 This is a unique and engaging book on prehistoric stone tools It advocates an experiential approach in which analysts try to understand stone tool designs from the users perspectives and employs a universal logic of designing tools to solve practical problems and evaluating various possible solutions However to do so it is also necessary to understand how stone can be mechanically modified to serve specific functions The author enlists a rich array of ethnographic observations and considerable background as a flintknapper to show the basic ways in which stones can be flaked and modified and what these characteristics can reveal about prehistoric problem solving strategies and design constraints This is an invaluable primer for anyone contemplating the study of prehistoric stone tools Stone Tools

George H. Odell, 2013-11-11 Lithic analysts have been criticized for being atheoretical in their approach or at least for not contributing to building archaeological theory This volume redresses that balance In Stone Tools renowned lithic analysts employ explicitly theoretical constructs to explore the archaeological record and use the lithic database to establish its points Chapters discuss curation design theory replacement of stone with metal piece refitting and projectile point style Human origin sites and the World Heritage convention in the Americas, Volume II UNESCO Office Mexico, 2015-12-31

Secwépemc People, Land, and Laws Marianne Ignace, Ronald E. Ignace, 2017-10-31 Secwépemc People Land and Laws is a journey through the 10 000 year history of the Interior Plateau nation in British Columbia Told through the lens of past and present Indigenous storytellers this volume detail how a homeland has shaped Secwépemc existence while the Secwépemc have in turn shaped their homeland Marianne Ignace and Ronald Ignace with contributions from ethnobotanist Nancy Turner archaeologist Mike Rousseau and geographer Ken Favrholdt compellingly weave together Secwépemc narratives about ancestors deeds They demonstrate how these stories are the manifestation of Indigenous laws stsq'ey for social and moral conduct among humans and all sentient beings on the land and for social and political relations within the nation and with outsiders Breathing new life into stories about past transformations the authors place these narratives in dialogue with written historical sources and knowledge from archaeology ethnography linguistics earth science and ethnobiology In addition to a wealth of detail about Secwépemc land stewardship the social and political order and spiritual concepts and relations embedded in the Indigenous language the book shows how between the mid 1800s and 1920s the Secwépemc people resisted devastating oppression and the theft of their land and fought to retain political autonomy while tenaciously maintaining a connection with their homeland ancestors and laws An exemplary work in collaboration Secwépemc People Land and Laws points to the ways in which Indigenous laws and traditions can guide present and future social and political process among the Secwépemc and with settler society People and Plants in Ancient Western North America Paul E.

Minnis, 2010-01-15 The environmental diversity of North America is astounding from circumpolar tundra with a small number of plants more than a few centimeters tall to the lush semitropical forests of the southeastern United States and the Caribbean Basin No less remarkable is the record of plant usage by the various indigenous peoples who have been living here for more than 12 000 years For the vast majority of this time their livelihood food shelter fuel and medicine depended on their knowledge and use of the plants that surrounded them The most comprehensive overview in more than half a century on the interconnectedness of people and plants this book and its companion volume People and Plants in Ancient Eastern North America present the latest information on three major topics the uses of native plants the history of crops and their uses and the impact of humans on their environment They not only contribute to our understanding of the lives of prehistoric people but also serve as guides for designing sustainable living today

The Organization of Complexity Brian Walter Hoffman, 2002 A fundamental goal in archaeology is explaining how and why human societies evolved from simple small-scale groups into our complex modern world Crucial to this goal are studies focused on transegalitarian societies those complex hunter-gatherer and simple farming communities that were neither strictly egalitarian nor highly stratified in their social relations Many researchers believe the archaeological remains of these societies hold the keys to understanding the processes that led to the emergence of social inequality and increased cultural complexity This dissertation contributes to the study of transegalitarian socio-political processes by investigating the relationships between economy status competition and corporate groups at Agayadan Village an eastern Aleut settlement abandoned during the 18th century AD The eastern Aleuts at the time of contact were politically and socially complex maritime foragers with ascribed social classes and ranked lineages whose members occupied large multifamily dwellings Agayadan located on Unimak Island Alaska contains the remains of at least 20 of these communal houses My research addresses two issues The first issue concerns understanding the organization of Agayadan s multifamily households particularly the relationship between the individual families and the larger corporate group My investigative strategy utilized large block excavations with high definition methods The spatial distributions of features artifacts and soil chemistry signatures demonstrate a basic division between communal space and family compartments The centrally located communal space was dominated by cooking facilities hearths and roasting pits shared by all families Each nuclear family however maintained their own storage facilities and workspace associated with a segmented sleeping area along the house walls The workshops contained manufacturing debris and tools indicating activities like sewing stone tool production and woodworking were undertaken by each family The similarities in the workshop assemblages suggest there was minimal economic specialization among household members These findings contradict the argument that multifamily households form where large labor forces were required The Agayadan villagers did not move into larger households strictly for reasons of economic efficiency given the evidence for economic independence among household members social and political motivations like elite competition for followers warfare related concerns and the need to symbolize and strengthen social bonds in eastern Aleut villages likely factored into their decision to live in multifamily houses The second dissertation issue centers on the relationships between house lineage size and economic activities wealth and status These relationships are explored through the comparative analyses of assemblages recovered from small medium and large houses The Agayadan villagers organized their houses in a similar fashion regardless of size Each excavated house contained the same aggregate of facilities workshops and family compartments The largest house however had the highest frequency of personal adornment objects which is consistent with the ethnohistoric observation that a household s status was based on its size The occupants of the largest house were also more involved in accumulating surpluses as indicated by the abundance of salmon remains and storage facilities Finally the larger household emphasized the production of prestige goods from locally available materials like ivory limestone and animal skins presumably for exchange outside the village The amber beads slate knives obsidian bifaces and other exotic goods received in return were widely distributed within the community and not hoarded by Agayadan s high status household These behaviors are consistent with a social banker strategy where elite lineages compete for status by working harder P3 producing an excess of foods and materials which they then use in alliance building feasting and celebrations in a social display of their power and prestige Agayadan s large household maintained their power and status by controlling prestige goods production and redistributing valuable exotics not by controlling subsistence resources and exploiting low status households The Agayadan archaeological record is an outstanding example of transegalitarian elites converting their labor and material wealth into social capital and political power In a real sense Agayadan s elite manufactured their prestige Leaves i iii Hunter-Gatherer Archaeobotany Sarah L.R. Mason, 2016-09-17 Hunter Gatherer Archaeobotany shows how archaeobotanical investigations can broaden our understanding of the much wider range of plants that have been of use to people in the recent and more distant past The book comprises sixteen papers covering aspects of the archaeobotany of wild plants ranging across the northern hemisphere from Japan across America Europe and into the Near East Sites examined span the Upper Palaeolithic to the recent past and demonstrate how such studies can extend our understanding of human interaction with plants throughout our history Northwest Anthropological Research Notes ,2001 Vol 2 no 1 includes Papers presented at the first twenty annual meetings of the Northwest Anthropological Conference 1948 1967
